Labor 'Crisis' Spreads In P.Q.

QUEBEC (CP) — Industrial and government facilities, schools, hospitals, newspapers and radio stations were hit again today in Quebec, fourth day of a groundswell of labor unrest that began with imprisonment of three top provincial union leaders Tuesday.

Reports of new walkouts and demonstrations came in hourly from widely-separated areas of the province. The first death linked directly to the turmoil was reported today. A man struck by a car Wednesday during a demonstration died overnight in Sept-les, 30 miles north of Quebec City.

The protests began with jailing of the three union leaders for contempt of court, but some local unions said they were protesting lagging contract talks.

The situation was described as a "crisis" by one of two Quebec cabinet ministers who said they had withdrawn their resignations from Liberal Premier Robert Bourassa's cabinet because of the labor trouble.

The planned resignations had been linked to other matters involving constitutional dealings with the federal government.

Montreal was without any of its six daily newspapers today after walkouts by various employees of the city's four French-language dailies and the two English-language ones.

Elsewhere, L'Action did not publish today at Quebec City and the provincial capital's other French-language daily, Le Soleil, was experiencing a walkout of some employees.

On the north shore of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, where demonstrators took over Sept-les earlier this week until police reinforcements were flown in by Canadian Armed Forces aircraft, there were reports of new walkouts overnight and today by miners, construction workers and teachers at Sept-les, Baie Comeau and Hauteville.

N. Vietnamese Press Ahead Ignoring Blanket Bombing

SAIGON (CP) — North Vietnamese troops and tanks smashed into An Loc again today despite saturation bombing by 70 U.S. B-52s that rained more than 1,700 tons of explosives on the devastated provincial capital 60 miles north of Saigon. It was the war's heaviest concentration of B-52s.

Pierce fighting raged in and around An Loc this morning, as Communist troops poured more than 3,000 shells on government positions in retaliation for 19 B-52 strikes in the area Thursday night, military sources said.

The North Vietnamese appeared determined to turn An Loc into another Quang Tri, the northernmost provincial capital that fell May 1 after similar heavy assaults.

An Loc, under siege since April 7, is 85 per cent destroyed, but its capture by the North Vietnamese could be another blow to prestige of the Saigon and President Nixon's Vietnamization program.

Fighting also erupted closer to Saigon with two clashes just south of the Saigon-Phnom Penh highway 25 to 35 miles north-west of the South Vietnamese capital.

Saigon's curfew was advanced an hour, to 10 p.m., and bars, night clubs and race tracks were ordered shut.

On the far northern front, below the demilitarized zone, U.S. officers told Associated Press correspondent Lynn C. Newman that the North Vietnamese were using Quang Tri city as a major supply base for their operations in the region.

U.S. Navy ships shelled Quang Tri for the first time, and officers said an ammunition dump and a fuel depot were the targets. Spotsmen said naval gunfire set off five explosions.

Soviet Merchantmen Turn Back

WASHINGTON (AP) — The defence department reported today that several merchant ships heading for North Vietnam have apparently changed course because of the American mine blockade.

Officials refused to give any specifics or say where these ships now are headed. But it appears likely that some may have chosen instead to go to Chinese ports where their cargoes could be moved to North Vietnam by land means.

Pentagon spokesman Jerry W. Friedhelm would say only that "several other ships" from the group of 25 that were headed for North Vietnam at the time the U.S. mines were laid Monday "may have diverted."

Thirteen of the 25 ships were under Soviet flag, disclosed today. Friedhelm also disclosed that two, and possibly three, additional merchant vessels left Hanoi harbor before the U.S. mines became activated at 7 a.m. EDT Thursday. These are in addition to the five vessels which Friedhelm reported Thursday as having left the harbor.

The three additional ships were identified as one Soviet and one Somali and apparently a second Soviet vessel, but this was not confirmed.

U.K. Railways Slow Again

LONDON (CP) — Thousands of commuters and other travelers in Britain were plunged back into a state of chaos today as disgruntled railwaymen resumed their slowdown—or work to rule—following the failure of efforts to resolve a nagging pay dispute.

The work to rule took effect at midnight Wednesday night and the newly-established National Industrial Relations Court adjourned until today its hearings about a possible order calling for a compulsory vote by the 200,000 railwaymen on the latest pay offer.

A request for the order had been made by the Conservative government but the hearings may have to be continued Saturday, which virtually would ensure a continuation of the rail chaos and near-paralysis in some areas through the weekend.

Troops And Guerrilla Bands Shoot It Out In N. Ireland

BELFAST (AP) — British troops and marauding bands of guerrilla gunmen clashed through the night in Northern Ireland.

Londonderry, soldiers and Republican Army snipers shot it out in several sectors but no casualties were reported.

In Belfast, however, three troops were wounded in a gun battle in the IRA-dominated Roman Catholic district of Ballymurphy. The army said one gunman was hit.

The shooting followed a day of violence. One British soldier was shot dead, a bullet in his throat, and two guerrilla bombs wounded 39 people, none seriously.

With guerrilla violence apparently on the upturn again after two weeks of relative quiet, Britain's minister for Northern Ireland, William Whitelaw, was expected to come under increasing pressure from the majority Protestant community to crush IRA strongholds in Londonderry and Belfast.

The biggest and most formidable IRA citadel is the Bogside, and Creggan district of Londonderry, where 35,000 Catholics live under outlaw rule behind a network of street barricades and all trenches.

Belfast's Lower Falls is another bastion which troops penetrate only supported by armor and where police don't go at all.

The IRA rules its ghettos with rough codes of "justice." It was in the Lower Falls that Elizabeth Hyland, a 15-year-old Catholic schoolgirl, was "punished" for five days by the Official IRA for allegedly being a British spy.

Elizabeth was severely beaten, tarred and feathered, and according to police, starved and fed pills that made her vomit. Her hair was shorn and pulled out by the roots.

Weeping in her hospital bed Thursday, her pummeled eyes closed tightly shut, she told of her ordeal.

Doctors said she was in a state of complete nervous collapse.

"I was terrified when the men took me from the house," she said. "I didn't know where they were taking me but I was in four different houses during the next five days."

"There were always men and women surrounding me. They kept the doors locked and made me sleep on the floor on a dirty old mat. After a while I didn't even know what time it was, or even what day it was."

Eventually her mother, 42-year-old Pauline Hyland, got a message saying Elizabeth had been tied to a pole at the end of the street she lived in and tarred and feathered.

Before she was let out of custody for her final humiliation—about 200 people had been summoned by the IRA to watch the tarring—"as a lesson"—Elizabeth was stripped.

"I was thrown a pair of dirty old trousers and shoes to wear," she said. "The next thing I knew I was outside in the street and they were tying me to a telegraph pole. They were cutting off my hair and putting tar and feathers over my head."

OGOPOGO SPRUCES UP FOR TRIP

With spray can in hand and under the expert supervision of director-general Ev McKee, Regatta manager Glen Carleton applies the finishing touches to the Regatta float Thursday night, prior to its departure early today for an appearance at the Washington State Apple Blossom Festival in Wenatchee, with additional decoration provided by Lady of the Lake, Wendy Nichols and Princess, Trudy Walker. The float will appear next weekend at the Spokane Lilac Festival and Kelowna residents will get a chance to see it during the city's July 1 celebrations. The stylized Ogo-pogo, incidentally, was created by local artisan, Peter Soen, who has managed to get his version of the lake beastie copyrighted.

No Survivors Of 94 Aboard Stricken Ship

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (Reuters) — Navy officers who today boarded the smouldering hulk of the British freighter Royston Grange said they found no survivors among the ship's 94 passengers and crew. It had collided with a tanker in the River Plate.

One officer said that after the Royston Grange rammed the 12,600-ton Liberian tanker Tien Chee 40 miles southeast of here, an explosion apparently set the freighter ablaze and destroyed its lifeboats.

Eight of the tanker Tien Chee's 40 crew members are missing in the inferno, which swept both ships after their collision Thursday.

The freighter arrived here under tow by three Uruguayan navy vessels.

Fire Destroys Lytton School

LYTTON, B.C. (CP) — Fire early today destroyed the Quin-shen secondary school in this Fraser Canyon community 60 miles southwest of Kamloops, B.C.

There were no injuries as the blaze, fanned by a stiff wind, ripped through the two-storey, wood-frame building shortly after 2 a.m.

Planners Know But Do People?

The schemes of planners are often presented with great optimism to the Powers That Be before they become reality, but unfortunately the little people—also known by that gross generalization, "the public"—know little about them from the time they leave the drawing board.

Donald Barcham, recently-appointed planner for both the City of Kelowna and the Central Okanagan Regional District, told the Kelowna Chamber of Commerce Thursday that since physical planning almost always results in changes in behavior patterns, those changes should be self-motivated, taking into consideration the attitudes and beliefs of the people they affect most. The little people.

"If awareness is widespread, people seek further information. They must have time to look at an idea and consider it. Education at this stage becomes necessary."

"If an idea is valid it may undergo a trial period. But if there is no time for a trial period, we have to rely on the experience of others."

Right now, he said, citizen participation in the planning process is largely limited to criticism at public hearings, which are necessary by law and which are supposed to provide understanding.

Mr. Barcham termed this "a hard-sell approach," which ignores the idea that people should be self-motivated and does not provide any form of education. In all too many cases, the public arrives at a public hearing uninformed, and emerge just as uninformed.

"Although everybody can't be involved in community-wide policy decisions, their involvement can come through informal public meetings at the neighborhood level."

Information to the public, he feels, can be provided through two programs. The first should appeal to already-organized bodies, such as the chamber of commerce, service clubs and pressure groups and should be readily available to the media.

The second, and most important program, should be direct and informative and should appeal to the individual, "particularly the one who doesn't join anything—the one you have to get out and chase a little bit."

Flood Threat Being Watched

OTTAWA (CP) — Environment Minister Jack Davis says his water management officials are keeping a close eye on a flood threat in the Thompson and Fraser valleys of British Columbia.

What happens, he said, depends largely on the winds and weather in the next few weeks.

Mr. Davis was replying to questions from Len Marchand (Lib.-Kamloops-Carleton) who said there is a threat of the biggest flood on record. He wanted to know whether the federal department stood ready to take action.

Canada Unhappy At U.S. Decision On Oil Pipeline

WASHINGTON (CP) — Interior Secretary Rogers has approved the construction of the trans-Alaska pipeline, choosing the route over a Canadian alternative through the Mackenzie Valley.

The decision announced Thursday was hailed by U.S. oil spokesmen but brought dismay from Canadian government spokesmen as well as conservationists in both countries.

Despite Morton's long-awaited announcement, legal challenges facing the Alaska route could delay beginning of actual construction of the line for several years.

Morton said he had approved the trans-Alaska route because it was "in the national interest" of the U.S. to have a pipeline under complete American jurisdiction for its "exclusive use."

Edward L. Patton, president of the Alyeska Pipeline Service Co., said the seven-member consortium formed to build the 780-mile Alaska route was "extremely gratified" at Morton's approval.

Spokesmen at the consortium's office in Anchorage said construction would not begin until the U.S. district court in Washington had ruled on moves opposing the pipeline.

years" longer than the three years estimated for delivery of oil through the Alaska line.

He also referred to "uncertainty and delay in arranging for financing of a trans-Canada oil pipeline" and added:

"I am convinced that it is our best national interest to avoid all further delays and uncertainties in planning the development of Alaska North Slope oil reserves by having a secure pipeline located under the total jurisdiction and for the exclusive use of the United States."

Despite rejection of the Canadian proposal, several oil industry spokesmen in Canada said they thought a line would be built through the Mackenzie Valley anyway.

E. C. "Bud" president of Trans Mountain Oil Pipe Line Co. of Vancouver, said he is not surprised by Morton's announcement. But he added: "It would appear that within not too many years, a line up the Mackenzie River will be built."

W. O. Twiss, president of Imperial Oil Ltd. of Toronto said: "Our next job is to get a gas system and I don't think there is any doubt there will be a pipeline put in."

In Calgary, the Independent Petroleum Association of Canada said in a statement the development of a pipeline route probably will not be delayed despite Morton's choice of the Alaska route.

Speaking in Toronto Thursday night, Energy Minister Macdonald said he thinks Canada will go ahead with the Mackenzie pipeline, but doubts the U.S. will participate in it. And if the U.S. does agree to go along later, it will have to do so "on our terms."

The Canadian proposal has received some support here. Congressman Les Aspin, a long-time foe of the Alaska line, has argued for a single trans-Canada "corridor" for both oil and natural gas pipelines.

Aspin said Morton's decision is "a blatant example of the interests of the oil industry superseding the public interest."

PREDICT LONG FIGHT

Several observers predicted a protracted legal battle which would only end in the U.S. Supreme Court.

The pipeline route approved by Morton would move oil from Prudhoe Bay—in Alaska's North Slope where the huge oil deposits are located—southward through Alaska to the ice-free port of Valdez. From there, the oil would be shipped by oil tankers to Washington state via the Strait of Juan de Fuca.

Canadian government and conservation groups have opposed the Alaska pipeline because of fears of pollution to the British Columbia coast.

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp of Canada said in Vancouver after the decision was announced that approval of the Alaska route is a "very, very foolish move." Sharp said U.S. authorities have not given adequate consideration to Canada's submission favoring the Mackenzie route.

Also expressing concern over the move was Premier W. A. C. Bennett of British Columbia.

In his announcement, Morton noted the U.S. desired exclusive use of the pipeline and said the Mackenzie Valley line could take "at least three to five

Significant Guards Planned

A recent exhaustive study of the Alaska by the Interior department appeared to favor the Canadian route, especially on environmental considerations.

But Morton said in his five-page announcement the study showed the trans-Canada route would cause greater damage to terrain and biotic habitat because it would be longer and traverse a greater area of permafrost.

Morton admitted the department's nine-volume study indicated the Alaska route involved a greater pollution risk from potential earthquakes and the tanker traffic down the Pacific coast.

But he said "significant steps have been and will yet be taken to protect against those risks."

This view was echoed in Vancouver by Imperial Oil President T. W. Smith, who said Canadians shouldn't be too alarmed about the tankers carrying the oil along B.C. coastal waters. He said Canada ships 25 million barrels of oil a year from Venezuela up the U.S. east coast through the Gulf of St. Lawrence and said the 250,000-ton tankers handling the Alaska oil would be considerably safer than the 16,000-ton vessels hauling oil north from the Caribbean.

He did add, however: "We must remember that as long as humans operate equipment there are going to be human accidents."

Construction Unions Reject Minister's Moratorium Proposal

VANCOUVER (CP) — Labor Minister Jamn Chabot called for a moratorium on lockout and strike activity in the British Columbia construction industry Thursday, but union spokesmen almost immediately rejected his suggestion.

Mr. Chabot proposed that the Construction Labor Relations Association lift its province-wide lockout, which enters its third week today, and that unions refrain from strike action for 30 days.

During that time he suggested that negotiations resume, with the help of a mediator, and after the 30-day period, if agreement has not been reached, that the dispute be turned over to an arbitration board for binding settlement.

The CLRA, which bargains for 840 contractors, said it was "reluctant to accept the principle of arbitration," but would go along with the minister's proposal if the unions would.

Mr. Chabot said he did not expect a definite answer from the unions for a week because most of the building trades council left Thursday to attend a week-long Canadian Labor Congress convention in Ottawa.

However, Jim Kinnaid, president of the B.C. and Yukon Construction and Building Trade Council, had a definite rejection of the minister's arbitration proposal following a council co-ordinating committee meeting.

"The principle of binding arbitration is totally unacceptable to the building trades and to accept it would give a big advantage to the contractors," he said.

"We are still prepared to continue negotiations but will not go back under the term of binding arbitration."

John Takach, president of the Vancouver local of the Carpenters Union, issued a statement saying the minister's suggestion was: "A modified approach to compulsory arbitration, which bluntly stated is forced labor."

Rose Left Speechless At Hung-Jury Surprise

MONTREAL (CP) — While spectators cheered and applauded, Jacques Rose was left speechless Thursday when the 12-man jury in his kidnap trial declared it was unable to reach a unanimous verdict after deliberating for 15 hours.

It was the first hung jury since the trials connected with the October, 1970, kidnap-slaying crisis began in early 1971. A unanimous verdict of guilty was given in all the other trials.

Spectators, mostly friends of Rose and his family, broke out in loud cheers, chanting and joyful tears when the jury foreman told Mr. Justice Eugene Marquis of Court of Queen's Bench there was no chance of reaching a unanimous decision.

"This shows the system is not all bad," the judge said as he put the case over to June 19, Quebec Justice Minister Jerome Choquette, the attorney-general, must decide whether to institute a new trial or drop the charge.

Clenching his fist in a salute, answered by one of the jurors, Rose was led out of the courtroom less than 15 minutes after entering.

Defence lawyer Robert Lemieux said he will present a request for bail as soon as possible. His client still faces a charge of murder.

Provincial police guards and plainclothes officers in the court made no attempt to control about 30 persons chanting "Ce n'est qu'un début, continuons la combat"—"It's only a beginning, let's continue the fight."

Mrs. Rosa Rose, a daily spectator at her son's trial, went up to the jury with tears streaming down her face and thanked them. A chant of "merci, merci" went up among the spectators as the 12 men left, all of them smiling.

Pipeline Decision Disappoints

Energy Minister Donald Macdonald expressed disappointment and disagreement in Ottawa with the United States decision Thursday to go ahead with a trans-Alaska pipeline. He suggested the accompanying tanker route down the Pacific coast "could produce difficult influences in Canada-United States relations." In a statement released shortly after the Washington announcement, the minister said the Canadian government "remains convinced that the alternative Canadian route through the Mackenzie Valley is the best from all aspects." Mr. Macdonald carried that position to U.S. Interior Secretary Rogers Morton in a Washington meeting March 30.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett said in Victoria Thursday he would be "happy" to see Howard McDiarmid as Social Credit candidate in Oak Bay riding in the next provincial election but added he wouldn't interfere in riding business. Dr. McDiarmid, first elected in 1966 as the Social Credit MLA for Alberni, announced recently he wouldn't seek re-election in that riding because he was moving to the Victoria area for family reasons.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett said British Columbia said Thursday in Victoria he is concerned about the U.S. interior department's decision to approve the trans-Alaska pipeline but B.C. plans no further protests at this time. The premier said the B.C. legislature went on record in 1971 as opposing the shipment of oil in supertankers from Valdez,

A beef heifer loan program to help farmers increase their herd to meet growing consumer demands was announced in the Ontario legislature Thursday by Agriculture Minister William Stewart in Toronto.

Dr. Roger Gaudry, rector of the University of Montreal, has been appointed chairman of the Science Council of Canada, succeeding Dr. Omond Solandt who headed the government advisory body during its first six years. Dr. Gaudry's one-year appointment was announced Thursday by Alastair Gillis, minister of science and technology in Ottawa.

In Tegucigalpa, Honduras, researchers have found a parachute harness and jumpsuit they believe were left by the hijacker of an Eastern Airlines plane after he jumped with $303,000 in ransom, the government said Thursday night. Farmers told government agents they saw a man sitting on the ground counting money before he disappeared into the countryside. Capt. Carlos Rene Sagastume, director of the national investigation department, said agents found the jumpsuit and harness Wednesday. The parachute probably was carried off by the poor farmers, he added.

Catherine Talowski, 51, of Maple Ridge, was killed Wednesday in a single car accident on Highway five near Blue River, about 140 miles north of Kamloops. A passenger, Stanley Melguy of Vancouver, escaped with minor injuries. Cause of the accident has not been determined.

An official investigation into the accidental wounding of a Vancouver man early Thursday has been ordered by Deputy Chief Constable Tom Stokes. Harmen Verbrugge, 24, was shot in the jaw at close range following a 15-minute high-speed car chase through Vancouver. He underwent a four-hour operation in Vancouver General Hospital to repair his shattered jaw. His condition after surgery was listed as satisfactory.

A conflict with film commitments has forced Chief Dan George to withdraw from the Vancouver Playhouse Theatre Company's production of King Lear, and the company has decided to cancel the presentation rather than replace him.

Two Prince George men were acquitted Thursday on manslaughter charges in the Oct. 6 death of Robert Wardrobe, 49. Mr. Justice R. P. Anderson directed the British Columbia Supreme Court jury to bring back a not guilty verdict against Albert James New, 20, and Henry George Miskinack, 28. Mr. Justice Anderson ruled for acquittal on grounds there was no evidence to indicate manslaughter and New and Miskinack were not the cause of death.

Columnist Jack Anderson says the FBI has secret files on Jane Fonda, Marlon Brando, Paul Newman, Henry Belafonte and other Hollywood stars. One of the FBI's fastest dossiers is on Academy Award actress Miss Fonda, writes Anderson, who published in Washington excerpts from what he said were the secret FBI files.

Alaska Gov. William Egan hailed the interior department's decision Thursday to issue a construction permit for a trans-Alaska oil pipeline and said he is confident the plan will stand a court test. Egan called the announcement by Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton as "momentous and tremendous news for Alaska" and said "it is a great day for the nation as well."

External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp said Thursday in Vancouver Canada would give "careful consideration" to participating in the international supervisory force for Vietnam suggested by President Nixon. However, he said Canada is not interested in getting into anything similar to the International Control Commission set up by the Geneva accords, of which this country is one of three members. "I would not say the ICC has been a conspicuous success," said Mr. Sharp.

Pepin Looks A Trifle Bruised In Trade Encounter With U.S.

OTTAWA (CP) — Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin looked bruised but still pugnacious at the end of Thursday's round of the Canadian-U.S. economic prize fight, during which the U.S. threw all the big punches. Mr. Pepin told the Commons Canada will lose American automotive investment because of U.S. tax subsidies to its car exporters through new domestic international sales corporations, or DISC.

He then warned Canadian subsidiaries of U.S.-controlled auto companies that Ottawa expects them to use tax concessions in last Monday's budget to reduce their prices to the Canadian consumer relative to the prices the U.S. consumer pays. This would weaken the Canadian market for cars the U.S. parent companies might try to export here through their DISC operations. Ford already has begun such exports.

He also said that while the government feels the budgetary tax breaks put Canadian-based manufacturers on an equal footing with foreign exporters, it would consider further measures to combat foreign export subsidy programs if they proved to be necessary.

MORE PUNCHES THROWN

Earlier in the day, the U.S. tends to go ahead with a trans-Alaska oil pipeline, despite Ottawa's argument that Alaska oil should be piped along the proposed Mackenzie River valley route to U.S. markets.

The construction of a trans-Alaska pipeline would mean shipping oil along the British Columbia coast to Washington state, setting up the danger of oil spills in the Pacific.

The U.S. treasury department announced it is considering countervailing duty on tires shipped to the U.S. from the Michelin tire plants in Nova Scotia because they have been subsidized by the Canadian government.

The company recently announced plans for a $11 million expansion program, which would be assisted by a $7.9 million economic incentives grant from the regional economic expansion department.

Canada has 30 days to respond to the U.S. warning. The only positive glimmer was an announcement that the U.S. broadened its restrictions on oil imports to permit increased Canadian shipments to the market east of the Rocky Mountains—to 570,000 from 540,000 barrels a day.

GET HIGHER QUOTAS

Even then the increase wasn't much of a gesture considering the traditional special relations between the two countries. The quota on oil imports from the Middle East and Latin America was boosted by 200,000 barrels a day—nearly three times as much.

Mr. Pepin, who spoke to Canadian representatives of major U.S. car manufacturers last week, said they had told him generally that the use of DISC by their parent companies—a certainty only in the case of Ford—should not have short-term negative effects on production, employment and investment in the Canadian auto industry.

But officials at Ford had said "DISC would affect the company's longer-term investment plans in Canada."

And while officials at General Motors and Chrysler had been similarly positive about the lack of short-term effects—he said the two companies have applied for DISCs but haven't yet decided whether to export to Canada through them—"each was less certain that the benefits under DISC would not have a bearing on long-term investment plans."

Sensible Approach Indicated In Poll

By TERRY STEWARD
Courier City Editor

For a long time, and particularly in the past short while, there has been debate over the need for a local government body to administer the needs of the community of Rutland.

Much of the debate has been hysterical... some generated from within Kelowna and most of it based on a wide assortment of facts, figures, ideologies and theories signifying little more than the fact Rutland has grown.

There have been a couple of attempts to incorporate the area, or at least form a type of administration. To describe these attempts as having failed would be as misleading as describing a suicide as successful.

Much of the problem in debate such as this is the understandable inability of the average homeowner, not wholly involved in civic affairs, to fully appreciate each and every consequence of incorporation.

Unless there is some dollar and cents gauge, most citizens cannot be expected to decide whether it is good or bad, and whom... and in many cases the information released the experts can be misleading.

An example of this was seen a short time ago in Kelowna when ratepayers turned down a bid to include a large shopping centre within city boundaries.

Such a move was, without question, a sound economical proposition for the Kelowna taxpayer but it probably, however, wasn't such a bargain for the regional district as a whole or the area adjacent to the shopping centre in particular.

Since then, city fathers have been going over the question and may eventually come up with an alternative move. While they cannot be faulted in their attempts to look after the city taxpayer's dollar, there is sometimes a higher motive which must be respected and it's a safe bet any future proposal will be a better one for the region as a whole.

And so it is with Rutland incorporation. The entire region as well as Rutland residents must benefit and the best determination of this can only be found in time... to strike intelligent standards for a community and work towards them in the best interest of everybody.

For Kelowna, sudden incorporation of Rutland would possibly, only possibly, be a good thing. It would create a specific government to which could be told "build your own arena, community centre or whatever." Those things for which some city taxpayers might feel they are being called upon to subsidize cousins in Rutland.

At the same time, however, the Kelowna ratepayer might do well to remember he is in the centre of a specific area; a marketing area upon which the economy of the city is, to a great extent, based.

There is also the premise that, while Kelowna should have a strong voice in the region, the conglomerate of population in any area should not necessarily be the dominant voice.

The citizens of Rutland no more want to be dominated in governmental matters by Kelowna than do the citizens of Kelowna want to be dominated by the conglomerate of B.C. population in Vancouver.

A multitude of questions arise when the thought of Rutland incorporation is discussed and most of these stem from the main query of what functions should the local government assume immediately and would incorporation be any more economical or faster than the progress being made now.

There is also one other important question. What area is being referred to when the name Rutland is being discussed. To incorporate the entire district known as Rutland as a city would be an incredible move at this time.

In an attempt at determining what the people of Rutland feel about the matter, the Courier conducted a series of interviews among officials, businessmen and residents.

The attempt was not to get a "yes" or "no" answer as to whether Rutland or a portion of it should be incorporated, but to gauge the general attitude of Rutland residents.

While many refused to comment or hesitated to give an opinion, the general assessment of the interviews indicates the following three points.

• The concern for the future of Rutland and the whole area is greater in Rutland than probably many in Kelowna would believe and there are a surprising number of people in Rutland aware of many of the problems involved.

• The people of Rutland generally agree there should be a move toward incorporation or a system where some of their affairs are handled even more locally than at the regional district level, but incorporation should sort of be "phased" in.

• The people of Rutland refuse to be forced into a "hasty" decision by reputed concern of the people of Kelowna and, above all, most do not want to be part of the City of Kelowna.

TRIP TO OTTAWA

His record as the best school patrol member in the Central Okanagan School District has earned Bob McInnes, 14, a trip to Ottawa. Bob was chosen by a committee comprised of the RCMP and school board members. (Courier Photo)

'No Hurry' In Rutland Incorporation But Residents Show Their Concern

By GEORGE WHITELEY
Courier Rutland Staff

Most residents of Rutland contacted by the Courier think Rutland should become incorporated and will time. However, they caution against doing things in a hurry.

They point out that, because of rapid development, the area will need proper services before long. One person said builders are doing things that would not be allowed with proper building rules.

On the other side of the fence is the question of increased taxes. Some residents said they moved here to get away from organized communities. Others say that, while incorporation would be good, it would probably be opposed by retired or young people, who make up the bulk of the population, because their finances are strained enough now.

Several persons said they had only been in Rutland a few months, and were not sufficiently conversant with the area to give opinions. Others had no opinions.

Here are the comments: Mrs. Robert Gartner, 125 Muir Rd.: "We moved here about seven years ago because we wanted out of the city. There were just fields around here then, but now there are all houses. We'd probably say no to incorporation."

Mrs. Irving Marshall, 185 Dillman Rd.: "I'd have to think about it for a while. My husband would like to see things the way they are."

Mrs. Thomas Mann, Moyer Road: "I don't think incorporation will hurt. In fact, I think it would help. Taxes would probably go up, but the improvements would balance this."

Henry Spent, 1510 Cornwall Rd.: "I really think it would be better for the present to leave things as they are."

Walter F. Spencer, Belgo Road: "I'm a bit outside of Rutland, but I was born there. They should have been organized years ago. They should be thinking about putting in sewers."

Mrs. S. Spieker, 613 Friesen Rd.: "It would be good if Rutland could organize. Builders are getting away with things that would not be permitted under building regulations. Paved roads and sidewalks would be nice, but maybe there aren't enough people and taxes would go too high."

James Murphy, 345 Dell Rd.: "It will probably come sometime, but a lot of questions will have to be answered first. I would like to know where the taxes go, how the boundaries were established between the two areas in the Regional District of Central Okanagan, and what is being done about industrial land?"

A. G. Kush, Gibbs Road: "I'd like to see incorporation, but I'm afraid many retired people would vote against it because their taxes would go up, and many young people would do the same. (Mr. Kush is retired.) Street lights, curbs and sidewalks would be nice. This is a nice place to live, and we have good shopping facilities."

Mrs. Wayne P. Olenick, 360 Hardie Rd.: "I think I would like to see more services. But I really wouldn't like to voice my opinion just now, because we only moved here in September."

Mrs. Paul Kanis, 205 Jurme Rd.: "It might be all right. But we pay enough taxes right now."

Nick Kardynal, 245 Holbrook Rd. W.: "I'm quite pleased to live where I am. I would like to live in a city, I would have gone to one."

Mrs. Douglas Lachner, 870 B Juniper Rd.: "We're satisfied with things as they are."

Paul Lacer, 310 Mallach Rd.: "I'm not against development. But my opinions about incorporation would depend on how much taxes would increase. I've got pretty high taxes already."

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Laas, 155 Barber Rd.: "It's good the way it is."

Mrs. Steve Abrahamse, 2463 N. Highway 97: "I think Rutland should go in with Kelowna. They need another highway between the two, and the only way they could get it is by joining up."

Mrs. Donald Fisher, 310 Bryden Rd.: "I think Rutland should become a municipality of its own, not join Kelowna."

Mrs. Gordon Fisher, 180 Dundas: "I can see it becoming an organized municipality, but not joining Kelowna. Our taxes would go sky high."

Mrs. H. W. Flemming, 770 La-roy Rd.: "Our house is for sale because we can't stand the noise. There should be more patrols by police, and people should not be allowed to bring trucks home at night."

Robert Watt, 292 Mallach Rd.: "I think Rutland should become incorporated. If and when this happens, they would be able to put through their own bylaws and build up the community."

Mrs. Charles Welch, 120 Molnar Rd.: "There are so many pros and cons I can't decide. But sooner or later I will have to make up my mind."

Dan Jaud, 735 Bell Rd.: "Incorporation would cost more money. Equipment would have to be bought and staff hired."

But, if the B.C. highways department could not maintain our roads any longer, we would have to consider it."

Mrs. Erwin Wahl, 1185 Thompson Rd.: "I think Rutland should remain as is. If we joined Kelowna, can you imagine what our taxes would be? Maybe Rutland should become a municipality on its own."

Ted Jahns, 11: "I'd rather have Rutland stay the way it is instead of joining Kelowna. I like a small town better than a big one because it feels nice and cosy."

Sandra Schafer, 12: "Rutland should have its own mayor and aldermen because it's silly for such a large community not to. But it shouldn't become part of Kelowna."

Standing On Its Own Feet

Many Rutland business people want to see the community incorporated — but remain on its own, not join Kelowna.

This comment was paramount in a random poll of business places. Most people interviewed felt Rutland was large enough to stand on its own two feet.

Even those who said they were too busy to analyze the situation felt something must be done. One said he had not considered the matter until the newspaper telephoned him, but that he would begin thinking about it.

That was the purpose of the survey — to get people thinking. Here are the opinions:

Mrs. Ed Gabel, upholstery shop manager: "I feel strongly that something must be done. But we've been so busy I haven't thought much about it."

Bob Brown, auto metal manager: "I'm against going with Kelowna. We are a different class of people."

Richard Milton, service station manager: "I can't see where it would hurt if we stayed unorganized. And I think we shouldn't join Kelowna."

William Davies, hardware manager: "Rutland should incorporate on its own. It would be easier to look after our affairs than if we joined Kelowna."

Joe Schneider, men's wear store manager: "I haven't thought enough about it to state a firm opinion."

Norton Would, variety store manager: "I have my own ideas, but I'll keep them to myself for a little while."

Joseph Mulligan, taxi operator: "We should become incorporated, but we shouldn't join Kelowna."

Al Bassingthwaite, insurance agency manager: "I don't think it's right for Rutland to remain unincorporated."

Murray Lang, stationery manager: "I think Rutland should incorporate on its own. It has the size and strength to remain independent."

Mrs. M. I. Milvain, beauty salon manager: "One hates to say, I've only been here since August."

Steve Bjornson, lumber company manager: "It's never crossed my mind, but I'll do some thinking about it."

Mrs. Alice Dory, grocery operator: "It has to be incorporated sometime."

Bill Shaw, variety store manager: "I have opinions, but I'd rather not stress them."

Charles Garvie, hauling operator: "Rutland should stay away from Kelowna. If it can incorporate properly, they should do so. If not, they should leave things as they are."

Mrs. Ian Smeltzer, installation company: "It should become organized, but not part of Kelowna."

Raymond Chase, garbage collector: "I think Rutland should remain as is. It seems better this way. There would be too much confusion if it was changed."

Alex Jurasovitch, merchant: "I think everyone would like to see improvements. Everybody wants these would increase taxes, but maybe they wouldn't, with so much taxable land."

Fred Stevens, president Rutland Chamber of Commerce: "I'm sitting on the hot seat, so I'd better not say anything."

Mel Marshall, director Regional District of Central Okanagan: "I would rather not comment at this time. The chamber is working on the matter."

Alan Patterson, realtor: "It's bound to come, but I don't think it should be forced on us. We're doing pretty good right now."

Vocational Schools, Colleges Complete Merger Next Year

Final amalgamation of the province's vocational institutes and colleges will not begin until the start of the next fiscal year, April 1973, according to Andrew Soles, B.C. superintendent of post-secondary education.

Speaking to the province's first convention of college faculty members and vocational instructors Friday, Mr. Soles said the melding of the two post-secondary systems depends on financial agreements between the colleges and the provincial department of education.

"It is the present policy of the provincial government and the department of education to bring about a melding of vocational schools and the province's colleges as soon as budgetary and occupancy agreements are made," he said.

Mr. Soles stressed to the combined group of vocational instructors and college teachers that neither program, vocational or academic, would suffer from the amalgamation.

Kelowna institutions were amalgamated last year. "It has been a pattern in the educational field to place more emphasis on university programs leading to degrees than on technical and vocational training," he said.

He explained the amalgamation of colleges with vocational schools will place equal importance and emphasis on all programs whether they be academic or vocational. Teachers, he noted, particularly in the vocational field are concerned about whether their students will be looked down upon by the rest of the college.

He assured them the melding of the two systems would indeed enhance the opportunities of both academic and vocational students.

"Courses through melding will open up to make vocational subjects open to academic students and academic subjects available to vocational students," he said.

Mr. Soles pointed out the only way the amalgamation will work to its full potential is when the two sides, vocational and academic start to work together in the colleges to make them operate as they were destined to, as "community oriented places of education."

The only obstacle now to the combined college system is the final financial arrangement between the province and the college districts. This Mr. Soles said will involve bargaining on both sides, which will be the last stage to the amalgamation.

Somehow around Kelowna, there is a talking crowd. At least Poplar Point residents Bob and Marion Kerr are convinced there is. The other morning they were awakened by the feathered chatterbox and at one point, according to Marion, it screeched at hubby Bob. "Get out of there, get out of there," Intrigued by the whole thing, says Marion, "We started talking to it and honest, it answered back. Its favorite expressions were 'shut up' and other choice words..." Unfortunately, the bird flew away before the Kerrs could subject it to closer scrutiny.

A varied musical offering will be presented at Dr. Knox Jr. Secondary Saturday night with a concert band from Port Moody Secondary performing as part of a band exchange program between the two schools. Also making an appearance will be the Dr. Knox concert band, stage band and glee club singers. The program starts at 7:30 p.m., with tickets on sale at the door.

Surviving Mrs. Patricia Sterma is her husband, Stanley of Kelowna; one daughter, Linda; one son, Ricky; one sister, Betty; one brother, Richard Hagen; several aunts and uncles, all in New Westminster.

Joseph Steger will conduct the service, burial will be in the Kelowna cemetery.

Jack O'Reilly was elected Wednesday as a trustee on the Southeast Kelowna Irrigation District board. He won out over fellow candidates Allan Borrett and Victor Koenig. A spokesman described the 47 per cent turnout at the polls as pretty "pretty close to a record."

LOCAL GOVERNMENT NOT NEW THOUGHT

There have been two attempts to incorporate the community of Rutland.

When it was a board of trade, the Rutland Chamber of Commerce co-operated with a committee of the B.C. Fruit Growers' Association to promote efforts to form a rural municipality.

This was turned down, although 70 per cent of the residents signed in favor.

The second effort was to form a village municipality with a more limited area. Further details of both attempts including the dates could not be immediately obtained.

IT HAPPENED IN CANADA

Short Takes

Figures to boggle at: Man-days lost from 141 industrial work stoppages during the first quarter of 1972 totalled 735,170, according to the Canada department of labor. The 141 stoppages involved 256,382 workers. In March alone in British Columbia 5,802 workers lost 9,050 man-days. An expensive exercise for the workers and the economy.

So they've decided to switch the Regatta dates back to its old position more or less. Back a score of years ago the dates were always set as in the week in which July ended. This meant that the Regatta was generally in the first days of August with August 1 and 2 generally appearing. Local long-time weather watchers always maintained that in that week there was generally—almost always—good weather, but the following week the weather broke. Then power boats became a big thing in the Regatta and to lure the big boats from Seattle Seafair, the local dates were changed to the first week of August. Then Penticon Peach Festival moved into the same week and the Regatta changed again to the week following the Penticon affair. And during the past few years the two have run on the same dates. Now the Regatta is going back to the last week in July. If the local weather pattern is the same as it was a score or more of years ago, the Regatta should enjoy perfect weather. And that is something it hasn't enjoyed these past few years. The date change is a good one and should prove beneficial.

It used to be that when spring arrived young men's fancies lightly turned to, well, lovelier things. Now they turn to Opportunities for Youth grants and, true to the season, the federal government has announced who is getting what. Among the many successful nonsensical applicants is a group from Newfoundland which seems to have struck upon a sure-fire method of applying. The group was awarded $14,990 to study ways of controlling seagulls at reservoirs and airports. What makes the award notable is that last year a similar group in St. John's got $6,000 for the same things. The secret of their success? A lot of gull, sir, a lot of gull.

And the above makes one wonder if there has been any concrete results come out of all these off-beat "studies" financed by the taxpayer. We can't recall having ever seen such a report. Nor for that matter, a report of a subsidized group.

Politicians complain—and very occasionally rightly so—that quotations taken out of context can be both misleading and damaging. And no help at all to the art of communication. The criticism can be returned. Consider, for instance, the remarks made recently by Prime Minister Trudeau when he was asked about the prospects for an election. With a dazzling smile and a smashing display of his academic tic, our leader responded with a quote from Desiderata: "You are a child of the universe, no less than the trees and the stars; you have a right to be here. And whether or not it is clear to you, no doubt the universe is unfolding as it should." We like the reply of the Toronto Globe and Mail: "Well put, Prime Minister! But as any teen-aged poster buff will tell you there is a good deal more to Desiderata than that. Considering the occasion, would not this passage have been equally apt? 'Keep interested in your own career, however humble; it is a real possession in the changing fortunes of time. Exercise caution in your business affairs for the world is full of trickery.' Or if not that, perhaps Desiderata's ultimate admonition: 'Be careful.' ... And that reminds one that our own Premier is rather prone to quote a line from Hamlet out of context. He is fond of saying, 'Just say I smiled and smiled and smiled.' But Shakespeare said it this way: '... Meet it is I set it down that one may smile and smile and smile, and be a villain ...'

CNR Expert Sees Massive Saving In Arctic Road-Pipeline Project

TORONTO (CP) — Construction of a road to the Arctic prior to building a natural gas pipeline alongside would produce savings equal to half the cost of the road, a transportation executive said here.

Dr. Robert Bandeen, executive vice-president of Canadian National Railways, said an engineering study into northern pipeline costs shows that this saving on a $1-billion Alberta-to-Alaska pipeline could amount to 50 per cent of the cost of building an all-weather road adjacent to the pipeline route.

He made his remarks in a speech to the International Material Management Society.

The CNR has been carrying out logistics studies for an Alaska-to-Alberta gas pipeline as a partner in the Gas Arctic Systems gas pipeline proposal.

Since the federal government proposed to build a $100-million road from Alberta to the Arctic Ocean along a proposed pipeline route and for pipeline builders part of the cost, oil industry spokesmen have said such a road is not necessary to the pipeline's construction.

Dr. Bandeen said an engineering consulting firm had been asked if a permanent all-weather road alongside the Mackenzie River as part of the pipeline proposal has any merit.

WOULD REDUCE COSTS

"They replied 'yes.' The capital cost of such a gas line, or any other similar pipeline system, could be reduced, they said, by an amount equal to as much as 50 per cent of the capital cost of the road if, prior to construction, an all-weather road were built in the Mackenzie River valley."

Dr. Bandeen said Prime Minister Trudeau's proposal to recover cost from the pipeline companies should "prove a more practical arrangement than having pipeline companies apply a tariff to themselves and other commercial users of the road in order to recover their road-building costs."

The study indicated that significant capital cost economies could come from a 330-mile-long transportation corridor along the Mackenzie River valley.

The construction of an all-weather road beside the pipeline would be an ecological advantage, he said. The road would provide a dike to keep oil from any future oil line from reaching the river.

Heroes Of Dam Buster Flights Head To Toronto For Re-Union

TORONTO (CP) — More than 80 Britons will fly here to join 20 Canadians June 21 for a reunion of 617 Squadron of the Royal Air Force, the famed Dam Busters of the Second World War.

A charter flight will bring the Britons, including wives and children, to the squadron's first Canadian reunion. Ten Australians also will attend.

The Dam Busters, led by the late Wing Commander Guy Gibson VC, handed Hitler a devastating blow when they breached the Mohne and Eder dams May 17, 1943.

The result was flooded mines, factories, railways, roads and bridges in the Ruhr, Germany's war-production centre. When regular RAF bombing resumed, there wasn't enough water pressure to fire the Germans to fight the resulting fires.

Sixteen Lancaster bombers flew that mission. Eight, each with a crew of seven, were shot down with only one man surviving.

Among those attending the reunion will be Group Captain Leonard Cheshire VC, a former commanding officer, and Air Chief Marshal Sir Ralph Coghane, who commanded the parent 5 Group.

Funds raised at a June 21 showing of the movie Dam Busters will support the Cheshire Homes of the squadron's former commanding officer.

Proceeds will go to the first Cheshire Home in Canada, to be opened that afternoon by former prime minister John Diefenbaker in Toronto. The homes, which have spread to more than 20 countries, are for incurable and permanently disabled persons, able to look after themselves to a certain extent.

IT'S MOTHICIDE!

Sir: I refer to the item in the Courier of May 9 which read: "Moth Program Phased Out. For the past 12 years the government has been sterilizing the codling moth population. Not only is this a clear case of the state intruding in the bedrooms of the nation, but it is also a definite act of genocide with the purpose of destroying the entire codling species. Why should they be denied the right of either resisting or enjoying the state of parenthood?"

Now is the time for our moths to organize and fly to Ottawa. Protest such discrimination! It is for them to control their own destiny! Is this another case where the "cloth" determines the "moth"? Codlings should be given the rights over their own bodies. If so desired, the minister of health should provide for them free.

REGATTA IDEA

Sir: I have a suggestion for the Regatta committee: To highlight the August Regatta here in Kelowna, why not have an across-the-Lake-Okanagan swim race? There could be several classes in order to give all contestants a fair chance. I'm sure many would be interested in such an event.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By THE CANADIAN PRESS
May 12, 1972 ...
The Society of Jesus was incorporated in Quebec 85 years ago today—in 1887—and the Quebec government offered to pay compensation for property taken over when the Pope abolished the order a century before, Ontario Protestants led the movement against this in Ottawa on the grounds it meant paying public funds to a religious order and, in the long run, obedience to the Pope. The federal Parliament refused to interfere.

1903—President Kennedy ordered federal troops to Birmingham, Ala., to keep order during civil rights demonstrations.

1958—Ellen Fairclough, former state secretary, became minister of citizenship and immigration.

Immigration Legislation A 'Bad Joke' In Canada

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's immigration laws are turning the country into a haven for foreign criminals, say a number of police and immigration officials.

In a series of interviews with The Star, the officials complained that criminals have little trouble getting into Canada. If ordered deported, they can stall for months, possibly years, through appeals.

And if finally deported, they can simply return to Canada. Some have been deported seven or eight times without penalty.

"In police circles the immigration department is regarded as little more than a bad joke," said Clem Hill, who until a year ago was in charge of the RCMP intelligence squad in Toronto.

Sergeant of Detectives James Noble said Metropolitan Toronto police have almost given up trying to get undesirables deported. Now they advise United States authorities to follow the more costly and time-consuming process of extradition.

A senior official in the immigration department said: "The plain truth is that we have no immigration policy."

"We let anyone in, criminals, anybody. Immigration has become a political football and everybody is scared of upsetting the ethnic vote or of being called racist."

Bryce Mackasey, federal minister of manpower and immigration, said: "I'm bothered too."

EASY TO ENTER

Canada, he said, is probably the easiest country in the world to enter and there are risks "as far as subversion and security are concerned."

He said that when he took over his portfolio in January a new immigration bill was about to be introduced. But it was held back for redrafting on the advice of senior officials in the department.

"If we plug the loopholes, it will help the police and help boost the morale of the immigration department," Mr. Mackasey said.

Among the most criticized aspects of Canada's immigration legislation in the interviews was the immigration appeal board, a body independent of the immigration department, to which persons ordered deported can appeal.

The number of deportation appeals to the board is increasing, partly because of a change in the legislation in 1967 which permits persons visiting Canada to apply for landed-immigrant status. Previously such applications had to be made from outside Canada.

Last year about 40,000 of the 125,000 people given landed-immigrant status applied from within Canada. At the end of 1971 there were 8,500 deportation appeals waiting to be heard.

CANADA'S STORY

Zig Zag Railroad Broke P.E.I.

By BOB BOWMAN

Although Charlottetown is the "Cradle of Confederation" it took a long time to persuade Prince Edward Island to join Canada. On Newfoundland held out longer, until 1949. Prince Edward Island became part of Canada in 1873, and then unwillingly.

The island got into financial difficulty owing to a railway. It was decided to build a railway from one end of Prince Edward Island to the other but the contract did not specify the route. The contractors were paid by the mile and built the railway to serve as many communities as they could.

The result was that the final cost was far greater than estimated. The railway wasn't completed until May 12, 1875, but the province was nearly bankrupt in 1873. Sir John A. Macdonald seized the opportunity to offer to pay off the railway debt if the island would become part of Canada.

Even so, there was a great deal of argument before the deal was made. Premier Haythorne led a delegation to Ottawa in February, 1873, and came back with a proposal. This was opposed by Conservative leader J.C. Pope who claimed he could do better.

There was an election on the issue and Pope won. He took another delegation to Ottawa and got the federal government to agree to take over the railway debt, grant the island 50 cents per citizen, establish a ferry service to the mainland and pay off British landowners who had obtained a great deal of property on the island through a lottery in 1767.

That deal was accepted and P.E.I. became Canada's seventh province on July 1, 1873. Sir John A. Macdonald loved Prince Edward Island. He recuperated there from a very serious illness in 1870 and stayed at Falconwood, a fine old home on the Hillsborough River.

OTHER MAY 12 EVENTS

1500—Gaspard de Cortereal of Portugal sailed from Lisbon on voyage that took him to Newfoundland.

1630—Charles LaTour became a Baronet of Nova Scotia.

1871—Chippewas ceded Mackinac Island to George III for $5,000.

1915—Roblin Government of Manitoba resigned owing to charges of corruption.

1922—Royal Canadian Navy was reduced to three small ships on each coast.

1937—Coronation of King George VI.

Trade Between Cuba And Canada Favors Canadian Businessmen

HAVANA (CP) — The trade balance between Cuba and Canada is weighted in Canada's favor and there still are opportunities for Canadian businessmen who want to take the time to develop commercial contacts.

Canadian sales to Cuba are more than five times the value of purchases and Cuba needs many things that Canadian companies produce.

Partly because Cuba does need so many things, the planners in this Communist state must weigh priorities carefully and this can be a frustrating experience for visiting businessmen.

Most of Cuba's sales abroad are agricultural commodities and more than three-quarters of the country's foreign trade is with socialist bloc countries.

Businesses in most non-socialist countries will not extend credit to Cuba and so its ability to trade in this area of the world economy is limited by ability to sell abroad and earn foreign currencies.

Most of the buying from Canada is done through the Cuban trade mission in Montreal. For sales where technical evaluations of products are necessary—such as fertilizers or animal vaccines—Canadian sales representatives go to Cuba to talk to the technicians who would be using the supplies.

The ease with which a Cuban agency can buy abroad depends on its access to foreign funds—the U.S. dollar is a common currency for trade with non-Communist countries.

SOME NEED APPROVAL

Cuban agencies with "hard currency accounts" can buy directly abroad while those with Cuban currency budgets must obtain approval from monetary authorities to import.

Businessmen selling to Cuba say the trading system operates at a much slower pace compared with corporate dealings in Canada. They complain that the people they talk to usually cannot make a decision to buy and questions of product choice normally are referred to committees.

Food products now make up the bulk of the two-way trade between Canada and Cuba.

Canada sold $36.07 million worth of goods to Cuba last year and bought $10.36 million worth. Statistics Canada figures show. The previous year, Canada exported $58.9 million in goods and imported $9.51 million worth.

The major item in Canadian sales was wheat or flour. The value of wheat, flour and seed sold last year totalled $33.69 million, including $27.02 million in wheat flour. Other sales included $10.64 million in skim milk powder, $1.07 million in purebred dairy cattle and $1.04 million in potato seed.

Canadian businesses had many small sales in more than 200 categories of goods including $350 worth of books and pamphlets, $338 in parts for chain saws and $100 worth of canned mixed vegetables.

The major items in Canadian purchases were $5.94 million worth of raw sugar, $1.63 million in lobsters and $1.03 million in shrimps.

Most of Cuba's sugar—its major export item—was sold to Russia and other socialist bloc countries.

Russia is Cuba's primary market and principal source of foreign aid. Most observers place the aid figure at more than $1 million a day—which works out to about 12 cents per Cuban.

Cuban officials say preferential trade arrangements with the socialist countries make it difficult for Canadian companies to compete on pricing of many manufactured goods.

An offsetting advantage for the Canadian companies is that specifications for many items in Cuba are the same as in Canada. The two countries have a cycle electric power systems while European systems are 50 cycle and both Cuba and Canada have the same railway gauge.

Cuba is attempting to develop its industrial capacity and Canadian trade officials believe it is a potential market for many Canadian manufactured goods, including industrial machinery and railway equipment.

SFU President Sees Chances Of Third World Trade Bloc

VANCOUVER (CP)—Dr. Kenneth Strand, president of Simon Fraser University, claims changes in American economic policies and Britain's planned entry into the European Common Market raise the question of a third trading bloc involving Canada.

"Both of these events have pronounced impact on Canadian policy inasmuch as the United States is Canada's largest trading partner and because Canada has had preferential arrangements with the United Kingdom and through that with Australia and New Zealand," he said.

"This raises the general policy question of whether Canada should be a partner in the creation of a new trading bloc, and if so, whether the key partners in such a trading bloc should be the U.S. or Japan, or both."

It was a question Dr. Strand did not attempt to answer in a speech to a panel discussion on Pacific trade at a one-day conference organized by the Conference Board of Canada.

"I suggest that these questions are of such magnitude that they are entitled to more analysis than I have given them today," But he did warn industrialists against overestimating Canada's trading potential with China. That nation's policy, he said, is aimed at internal self-sufficiency and the Chinese step outside their own production capacity only "to pick up the short-falls in goods and raw materials."

On the other hand, Japan—whom accounts for 65 per cent of Canada's Pacific Rim exports—takes Canadian exports "in a very crude form," said the SFU president. Only three per cent of the exports are in the form of finished products, whereas 66 per cent of Japanese sales to Canada are "a diversified range of processed and manufactured goods."

"Policy questions arise because Canada wishes to increase the level of processing of its exports to Japan and thus increase the Canadian employment associated with these exports."

"A large portion of these exports are non-renewable resources. This policy question will have to be resolved against a backdrop of increasing environmental concern."

A text of Dr. Strand's remarks was released in advance of delivery.

Nixon's Massive Gamble

By setting up a near-blockade around North Vietnam, President Nixon has effectively tried to shift part of his depressing Vietnamese burden onto the Soviet Union, says a Canadian Press analysis.

The long delay in Moscow's official response, and the lack of early indication how the Soviet military would react, indicated that the Soviet leadership appreciated both the extent of the gamble Nixon was taking and the size of the stakes that were in play.

Even Henry Kissinger, the president's chief adviser and a normally indefatigable personality, looked weary and resigned when he told reporters that Nixon's decision was "reached prayerfully and on the best belief that it will work, but only events will prove whether it will."

Nixon and his spokesmen had made clear, almost from the start of the North Vietnamese offensive five weeks ago, their disappointment with the Soviet role in Vietnam.

In Nixon's view, it was Soviet tanks, heavy artillery and other armament which contributed most to the American quandary by permitting North Vietnam to undermine the president's policy of Vietnamization while refusing to negotiate a settlement of the Indochina debacle on terms the U.S. could tolerate.

The president was said to feel that American diplomacy and power were being humiliated by the North Vietnamese, and he had frequently stressed lately that he could not permit a demeaning of his presidential office.

The Soviet Union now is being pressured again to share Nixon's search for a solution, and under some of the same conditions which so upset the American president—difficulties of supporting a fighting ally, coupled with a potential loss of face in a showdown.

Nixon has risked a substantial bet on the Soviet response, and the measured and even conciliatory statements made by American officials seem calculated to persuade Moscow to weigh its future moves judiciously.

Apart from the frightful possibility of a physical confrontation between U.S. and Soviet armed force, the Nixon decision put at risk the whole range of accommodations that had blossomed between the two superpowers and that were to be crowned by Nixon's visit to Moscow starting May 22.

Cancellation of the trip, while serious enough if it occurred, would probably weigh less in the long-term balance than breaking off the strategic arms limitation talks or even the loss of new trade and economic opportunities.

And should the Soviet leadership attempt to divert attention from its Asian difficulties by unleashing trouble in other sensitive areas of the world, the price of the Nixon decision would have been measurably increased.

The American government's best hope may rest in an appreciation by the Soviet Union that the Vietnamese problem, unless settled by negotiation, could poison international relations indefinitely.

Moscow may decide it is no more enchanted at being Hanoi's pawn than President Nixon likes having U.S. prestige depending on the South Vietnamese army.

Treasures From The Past Adorn Kelowna Bride

When Shelley Darlene Cadden, daughter of the late Mrs. Iris L. Cadden, exchanged marriage vows with Larry Leonard Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Leroy Smith of Kelowna, she wore her grandmother's wedding band. She also wore a gold chain with a locket borrowed from the groom's mother which she wore at her wedding.

Rev. John Davidson officiated for the double-ring ceremony in St. Paul's United Church, which was decorated with standards of spring flowers. Mrs. Howard Relf presided at the organ for the late afternoon ceremony.

Given in marriage by a close friend, Fred Kabaotoff, the bride wore a white floor-length gown porte de sheen fashioned on empire lines with rounded neckline. Lily-point sleeves of lace matched the full attached train of all lace. A rhinestone tiara held her white veil which was edged with matching lace and she carried a bouquet of white carnations and small red sweetheart roses. New earrings and a blue garter completed the sentimental tradition.

PEARL PENDANTS

Maid of honor, Marion Larson of Kelowna and bridesmaids, Donna Braddick of Vancouver and Barbara Smith, the groom's sister of Kelowna were clad in identical full-length gowns of aquamarine. Short sleeves completed the empire waisted ensembles which were adorned with pearl pendants, gifts from the bride. They carried crescents of white daisies and white roses enhanced their hairdos.

William Boniface served as best man and ushers were Kelly Kennedy and the groom's brother Barry Smith, all of Kelowna.

For the reception at the Rutland Centennial Hall, the bride's aunt, Mrs. Baden Powell of Vancouver, received wearing a pink dress with matching pink lace coat. A corsage of white carnations completed her costume.

The groom's mother chose a mint green polyester ensemble with white accessories, contrasted with corsage of pale pink roses.

SILVER GOBLET

A round three-tiered wedding cake trimmed with white and yellow daisies and a green daisy chain centred the bride's table which was covered with a white crocheted abelecloth made by her aunt, Mrs. Powell. White candles in silver holders flanked the cake topped with two doves. All tables were centred with floral arrangements and attached to pastel mints wrapped in yellow net were cards expressing the newlyweds thanks. Silver engraved goblets, a wedding gift, were used by the couple for toasts.

Master of ceremonies was Dave Sparrow and toasts were proposed by William Boniface and the bride's uncle, Donald Cadden. Mrs. Dorothy Dingman of Edmonton said grace. Telegrams were read from Mark Kerr, New Zealand and Mr. and Mrs. K. Creelman, Newfoundland.

For her going away outfit the bride donned an orange crepe dress with brocade sleeveless coat. Bone accessories completed her costume. After a honeymoon in Spokane the couple are residing at their home at 743 Rowcliffe Ave. Out-of-town guests were: Mrs. Edna Smith, Edmonton; Mr. and Mrs. Al Dingman, Kelowna and Eryl, Marion Eesman, Gilbert Smith, all of Devon, Alta.; Sandy William and Wayne Creelman of Calgary; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Braddick, Mr. and Mrs. Herb Braddick, Donna and Jim, Lyne Clydesdale, Mr. and Mrs. Baden Powell, Mr. and Mrs. John MacQuay, Mr. and Mrs. Brian Powell, Mr. and Mrs. George Powell, Mr. and Mrs. Donald MacQuay, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Travis, all of Vancouver.

Auction Sale Raises Funds

The auction sale held by the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks during which they were assisted by the ladies of the Royal Purple proved successful. Due to generous donations and attendance, $200 will be donated to the Purple Cross Fund—Deaf Detection and to the Kelowna community swimming pool fund.

The Purple Cross Fund is for the purpose of providing medical or surgical treatment to any young person under 18 years of age whose parents are not able to cope financially. Last year more than $70,000 was donated for this purpose across Canada.

The deaf detection part of this fund is self explanatory as it is primarily for that purpose—detecting any hearing problems at an early age so that treatment can be administered at once. This applies to the younger children and any parent who may not be sure but suspects a hearing problem, should contact any member of the BPOE or OORP.

NOW DOCTORS CAN FIND OUT

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario doctors will get a chance to find out everything they always wanted to know about sex but didn't know whom to ask.

Some doctors and their spouses will attend a week or 10-day seminar on sexuality so the doctors can get rid of their sex hangups and, by doing so, help patients.

About 200 doctors passed a resolution to this effect at the Ontario Medical Association council Tuesday.

The sexuality seminar will be sponsored by the association at a date to be decided.

Dr. W. J. Troup, an Ottawa cardiologist, said "any doctor can fix a broken arm regardless of his attitude about broken arms, but he can't handle sex counselling when he's got sex hangups."

He said sex counselling was hard to learn from a book. Doctors first had to face their own attitudes.

ANN LANDERS

Calorie Counters Are Not So Nutty

Dear Ann Landers: Please tell me what is happening in our society to make everyone so weight- and calorie-conscious? I've had women who are darned near strangers tell me they lost four inches last month. This morning the elevator operator confided between the first and fifth floor that she has lost five pounds.

The guy whose desk is behind me asked me this noon what I usually dream about. When I told him, "None of your business," he looked surprised and said, "I dream about strawberry shortcake."

This afternoon at about 3 o'clock I felt a little weary so I went to the vending machine and bought a candy bar.

The woman whose desk is across from mine looked up and said, "You don't need that. A couple of carrots would be a lot better for you."

I told her they don't sell carrots in the hall. She suggested I bring some from home. I lost my cool and said I wasn't interested in a lecture on nutrition. She snapped back, "The people who need it never are."

Please explain this sudden interest from the health nuts.—

Not Starving

Dear Not: These people aren't so nuts. We've learned a lot about nutrition these past 20 years and it's helping to prevent heart attacks and other diet-related diseases. Women who starve themselves for vanity's sake are balmy but it's smart to eat sensibly, exercise regularly and watch your weight.

Dear Ann Landers: I'll come right to the point and hope you will, too. Joe and I went together two years before we were married in a church. We talked about having a family. The idea appealed to him a lot in our courting days. "A boy for me and a girl for you"—in fact he said he'd like three or four kids.

Now, a year later, he says he's changed his mind. He claims his brother's kids make him nervous. He has decided that we aren't going to have any children, not even adopted ones. The thought of a life without a family upsets me terribly. I feel as if I have been betrayed. Whenever I see a tiny baby I have to fight back the tears. Please help me—23 And Miserable in Montana

Dear Montana: If you're miserable now, wait a while. Your misery will grow with your resentment. Frankly, I don't see how you can find peace and contentment with this man. Discuss the problem with the clergyman who married you and ask him to guide you.

HORMONE TREATMENT

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Dangerous young sex offenders are being given injections of a female hormone to reduce sex drive, a medical official said. Dr. Lionel Chatz, psychiatrist superintendent of Melbourne Children's Court Clinic, said the treatment is used in cases where the only alternative is indefinite confinement. The youths are injected every two weeks with the hormone oestrogen, Chatz said, but the treatment is temporary and completely reversible.

DANCE PUZZLEMENT

Folks who have been dancing square and rounds for a good number of years have often been heard to say — we miss some of the old routines we used to do. Wonder whatever happened to Happy Polka, Tammy and the Pacific? Truly, when you look back in time at some of the real fun rounds and remember the pleasure they offered dancers at the time, isn't it reasonable to believe that today's newer dancers would get the same pleasure with the past favorites?

There are the "old standards" in pop music that are always favorites. Why not the same with rounds — especially square dancers' rounds? Let us know if you'd like to see a revitalizing of some of the real old goodies. We're interested.

Till next week, Happy square dancing.

Fan Feelings Are Strange

By ROSS PHELPS

Why is it that pulling for an underdog in a sports event is a virtue, while backing the favorite covers you with a film of contempt?

The Stanley Cup playoffs are a good example of this, with those pulling for Boston Bruins in the final over those poor old New York Rangers looking down upon. On the other hand, those hoping Rangers would win puff themselves up with the thought, "I'm going for the underdogs, you're just favoring those people who are expected to win."

Is losing a virtue? If so, let me present a true-blue underdog-favorer, Me. Who else would favor Toronto Maple Leafs over Bruins (Leafs lost the quarter-final in five games), Montreal Canadiens over Rangers (Habs lost in six), St. Louis Blues over Minnesota North Stars (it paid off, Blues in seven games), and Pittsburgh Penguins over Chicago Black Hawks (Hawks in four straight).

I also favored Rangers over Hawks in their semi-final, but haven't been able to figure out who was favorite.

All my virtue from previous Stanley Cup playoff series went for naught when I picked Bruins over Rangers. I would like to beg your pardon, but I would like the chance to explain my position, with four reasons.

The first is that Bruins are a better team. The second reason is because I think Bobby Orr is the best player ever to come along and wish him the most of everything. Thirdly is a little wager with Sandy Brown of CKIQ, an underdog backer. The fourth is that Rangers aren't as good as Bruins.

These reasons, backed with cold logic and five dollars, have put this writer in a contemptible class. It seems only reasonable to this writer that anybody who has backed Maple Leafs through thick and thin (usually thin) should be excused for occasional vagaries.

From Ed Sehn's orange-colored spats to Ida Patterson's shapely presence, Budget Boys are the most colorful team in the Kelowna and District Senior Men's B Softball League.

The league is into its second week of play, and is shaping up to be an interesting dog fight for first place. Rutland Rovers, Boys and Treadgold's Club 13 are all in the running for a shot at the top spot while Willow Inn Willows will constitute a threat once they settle down.

In baseball, the newly-named Kelowna Mavericks have played only one game, a losing effort, but have shown to be a basically good team. A bit weak at pitching and at the plate, perhaps, but a good team.

The indication given from the first game, a 9-5 loss to Vernon Luckies, is that Mavericks and their fans will develop an affinity. The proceeds from the first game won't have Maverick officials breaking down any bank doors, but this will pick up as soon as it gets a bit warmer and now the Stanley Cup playoffs are over.

Willows Overcome Problems But Only For Seven Innings

A lack of pitching and too many fielding miscues have kept Willow Inn Willows off the winning ledger so far this season in the Kelowna and District Senior Men's B Softball League.

Thursday night they got the pitching and the regulation seven innings with only a single error.

Unfortunately their own bats were silenced and Treadgold's Club 13 took a 3-0 triumph on three errors in the eighth inning, the first extra-inning game this season.

Willows, one of the hardest hitting teams in the league, brought their record to 0-5 while Club 13 moved into a second place tie with Budget Boys with their third win in five games.

Monte Carlos Upset Kickers

Kelowna Monte Carlos, tied for last place in the Okanagan Valley Soccer League standings, scored an upset 2-1 victory over second place Kelowna Kickers in the quarter-finals of Royal Cup playdowns Wednesday night.

Monte Carlos, with goals from Joe Mezel and John Vukate, took a 1-0 lead over Kickers at half time and went on to win the game. Fred Maltzahn scored for Kickers.

Kickers are in second place in the six-team league, two points behind Vernon Heidelberg who have a 5-0 record for 10 points. Kickers have won four of five games for eight points. Vernon Heidelberg and Pentleton Molsons each have two wins in five starts for a third place tie, while Monte Carlos and Revelstoke Rangers each have won one game to bring up the rear.

John Haar of Kickers and R. Scott of National Hotel lead the scoring race, each with eight points. Ewan McInnes of Heidelberg and A. Ambrosio of Kickers each have seven points.

Al Relter and J. Arthur of Nationals each have four points while Stan Godel and M. Stein of Heidelberg, Rod Walker of Monte Carlos and Fred Molzahn of Kickers each had three points.

Games scheduled for Sunday and previously cancelled because of an all-Star game will go ahead as scheduled. Vernon United defeated Vernon Rangers 5-2 in their Royal Cup action.

Age No Problem To Winning Driver

LEBANON, Ohio (AP) — Morris Nixon, who retired as a farmer at age 63 and became a harness racing driver, forces us to end to the activity "as long as I can get on the cart."

Nixon, now 87, holds the distinction of being the oldest licensed driver at a pari-mutuel race track in the United States. But he isn't just a driver, he is a winning driver.

During the current meet at Lebanon Raceway, he drove his own horse, Mr. Nixon, five times. He has won twice and finished in the money all five times.

Nixon, who brags that he has never smoked nor been drunk in his life, said he plans to race the four-year-old bay gelding an average of once a week at Lebanon.

"I don't have to race for the money," he said. "I just enjoy racing."

BOSTON TAKES CUP

Bobby Does It Again!

NEW YORK (CP) — It was much the same as any other game which Boston Bruins' No. 4, Bobby Orr, has dominated in his six National Hockey League seasons.

The only difference Thursday night was that it meant another $15,000 to Orr and his teammates, who blanked New York Rangers 3-0 to win the best-of-seven Stanley Cup final in six games.

Orr, the 24-year-old super-defenceman from Parry Sound, Ont., scored once on the power play—the winner—set up a second power-play goal by Wayne Cashman, and in general controlled the game.

"Give my vote to No. 4," yelled one disgruntled Ranger fan in the closing moments of the game after Cashman zeroed in for his second goal of the night with less than two minutes to go.

"The rest of those guys can pump in 20 more goals before this game ends," said another New York fan, "but he killed 'em."

In addition to the $15,000 in playoff bonuses, the Bruins earlier earned $2,500 for finishing atop the NHL's East Division and winning the Prince of Wales Trophy for the second consecutive year.

The Rangers got rarely tries to impress others with oratorical gems that are not part of his nature.

"It's still a big thing," he said of the Stanley Cup victory, the Bruins' second in three years after a drought of almost three decades.

"New York has a heck of a club, but we felt all along we could win," he said later in the Boston dressing room.

It marked the second final in which Orr fired the winning goal. Against St. Louis Blues in the 1969-70 win, he tallied at 40 seconds of the first overtime period to give Boston a 4-3 victory and a sweep of that series. And if the game was so tight, $7,500 each on top of $1,250 for finishing second in the East.

ORR'S THE STAR

Orr was the game's No. 1 star, won the Conn Smythe Trophy and $1,500 as the outstanding performer in post-season play and finished up with another $3,000 in prize money for winning the Hart and Norris trophies given to him at last Friday's awards luncheon.

The Hart goes to the most valuable player and the Norris to the NHL's outstanding defenceman.

Despite all the glitter that surrounds the young defenceman, he still treats the game with a simple approach and calm of Orr, it was just as easily a typical Boston victory—fashioned along the format of bedlam and mayhem that has been their success in recent years.

Their big hitters—Cashman, Ken Hodge, Carol Vadnais, Don Awrey—had the Rangers skating with their heads up.

Referee Art Skov had his hands full in the first two periods, dishing out 14 minor penalties—seven apiece—and three fighting majors to each team.

Skov also took exception to one of Orr's remarks and assessed him a misconduct. To which Orr replied, when asked about it later: "I didn't swear at him, believe me."

CHEEVERS STOPS 'EM

The Rangers were still a threat after Cashman scored the first of his two third-period goals. But their efforts were to no avail against Boston goaltender Gerry Cheevers.

It wasn't the same Cheevers who allowed five goals in each of two previous starts against New York in the final. It was more like the Cheevers of two years ago who logged 10 straight wins in the playoffs.

Orr didn't get to help Lord Stanley's silver goblet around the hushed arena. That honor belonged to veteran Johnny Bucyk whose service with the club harkens back to the days when the Bruins looked on a victory during the regular season as reason to celebrate.

Ranger captain Vic Hadfield summed it up nicely—for the players as well as the fans.

"You want to know what turned this game around?" he told writers who wandered through the New York dressing room.

"It was the same thing that turned this whole series around—Bobby Orr."

"We were even in faceoffs, even in power plays and even in penalty killing. Everything was pretty even, except they had Orr."

"I found this in your locker. Why not try it instead of the bait!"

Voyageurs Wins To Take 3-2 Lead

BALTIMORE (AP) — Nova Scotia Voyageurs moved to a 3-2 advantage in the best-of-seven Calder Cup American Hockey League finals Thursday night, scoring shorthanded goals in each period to take a 4-1 victory from Baltimore Clippers.

The Voyageurs, who dropped the first two games of the series, now are in a position to clinch the championship with a victory at home Monday night.

Although Baltimore coach Terry Reardon said he didn't think the Voyageurs "got that many good shots," he conceded that the three shorthanded goals "were backbreakers."

"They killed us," he said.

One Big Inning All That's Needed To Give Treadgold's 13-12 Win

Five runs in the fifth inning propelled Treadgold's to a 13-12 triumph over Peoples in Junior Babe Ruth action Thursday.

Peoples had built up a strong lead in the first three innings but watched it slip away before a determined Treadgold's comeback. Dale Popp was the winning pitcher, in relief of starter Gerry Perreault. Darryl Hayes took the loss, coming in for starter Monty Richardson.

Treadgold's 103 45-13 11 543 00-12 6 3
Perreault, Popp W and Popp, Garvin; Richardson, Hayes L and Welder.

Both teams had their chances to score throughout the game, but Sehn and Ganley kept a tight reign on the hitters to prevent the scoreless tie being broken. Willows got their first batter in the opening inning as far as third, but he was stranded there.

Both Willows hits came in the second inning, and left John Chadwick and Jim Elko stranded at second and first bases. Willows next best chance to score was when Wayne North reached third on an error with one out in the sixth inning. Sehn got the next two batters out to prevent the score.

Club 13's best scoring chance came in the top of the seventh inning, when Jack Leler got to third on an error by shortstop Ken Weninger with none out. Ganley got the next three batters out to end the threat.

Ian King started the eighth inning rally for Club 13, when Willows third baseman Ron Bennett threw the ball away in trying to catch the lead-off batter at first. King reached third and sat there while Ganley got the next two batters to ground out.

It looked as if Ganley would get out of the inning unscathed when Gil Atkins drilled a grounder to Bennett, and the third batter bobbled the ball to allow the run to score. Rick Clarke followed with a single and Leler forced in a second run when second baseman Darryl Weninger dropped his hit.

Willows couldn't start anything in their half of the frame and went down to their fifth straight loss. Teams are idle until Sunday night at 8 p.m., when Club will take on Rovers at King's Stadium.

REMEMBER WHEN . . .

Chile's go Black Hawks may have lost out on the ice during the season, but they made it at the voting table six years ago today—in 1968—when four of their players made it to the six-man National Hockey League first all-star team. They were Glenn Hall, Pierre Plante, Stan Mikita and Bobby Hull. Pat Stapleton made it to the second team.

But at the June meetings of the NHL, the Players Association will ask that the figure be increased to $7,000 per man.

"Ballard, by his generous gesture, has proved to the NHL owners how they can cut their contributions. If the receipts from the Russian series do go to the pension fund, the owners shouldn't have to kick in much more toward player benefits than they are doing now."

Ballard, president of the Gardens, also offered that any proceeds from tournament games played there, go to the NHL Players Association pension fund.

NOW GIVE $3,500
Eagleson said the NHL owners now contribute $3,500 a man each year in premiums for pension, insurance and medical treatment.

Jury Still Out On Formula For Memorial Cup Finals

OTTAWA CP — The jury is still out on whether the brand-new format for the Memorial Cup is a success.

Earl Dawson of Winnipeg, Canadian Amateur Hockey Association official in charge of this year's junior hockey championship, said Thursday it may be sometime before a verdict is rendered.

For the first time, champions of the Ontario, Quebec and Western Canada major junior leagues are meeting in a three-game, round-robin series. The best two clubs in the series meet Sunday in a sudden-death game for the Memorial Cup.

Peterborough Petes, the Ontario champions, are assured of a spot in Sunday's play. They beat both Cornwall Royals, Quebec champions, and Edmonton Oil Kings by two-goal margins earlier this week.

Cornwall and Edmonton play tonight with the winner getting another crack at beating the OHA entry.

National Hockey League president Clarence Campbell told promoters at the Memorial Cup luncheon that the new format could become a great national sporting event.

To accomplish this, Campbell noted, the series would need television coverage lacking this year. The strike at CBC, and CTV's already-hefty sports programming, ruled out TV coverage.

Dawson was pleasantly surprised at the opening-night crowd Monday of just under 8,000. The attendance went down to 5,800 Wednesday.

"But we have sellouts (about 10,000) for Friday and Sunday," said Dawson.

Mets People Want Willie Mays Superstar Goes To New York

NEW YORK (AP) — "It pleases me," said Willie Mays, "that people still want me."

With those modest words Thursday, the baseball great began a "new career" at age 41 with New York Mets.

The San Francisco wonder player, acquired in a much-publicized deal, responded with enthusiasm at the idea of playing in New York.

"I love baseball and I love this town," said the second best home run hitter in history. "I'm looking forward to playing—I'm not looking forward to embarrassing myself. I'm glad the Mets didn't worry about how old I was."

"That tells me something about Willie Mays. It tells me that maybe I've got something left."

For awhile, it looked as if the Mets weren't going to get the great centre fielder at all. News of the prospective deal broke last week, but it was reportedly cooled when the Giants asked too much.

Interested in one of the Mets' starting pitchers, the Giants settled Thursday for minor league right-hander Charlie Williams and an undisclosed amount of cash. The deal was quickly closed Thursday morning after Mays was personally brought in on the talks.

"We wanted to make sure that Willie would be happy in New York," said M. Donald Grant, chairman of the Mets' board of directors.

Marlene To Star After 8 Years

LONDON (Reuter) — Marlene Dietrich is to give a series of one-woman shows in London this month, her first appearance here since 1964. Miss Dietrich, who is 67, will give 16 shows at the Queen's Theatre starting May 29.

LONDON (Reuter) — George Harrison who as a member of the Beatles 10 years ago helped bring long hair into fashion, sported a close-cropped haircut Tuesday.

Accompanying him at London airport was the pop group's former drummer, Ringo Starr, who was wearing the "greaser look" short on top, swept up at the sides and down at the back. They were leaving London airport for Nice to see a charity film in aid of Bangladesh.

ROME (Reuter) — Michelangelo Antonioni, one of Italy's best-known film directors, flew to China Tuesday to direct a film on China for Italy's state-run television network.

For his television debut, Antonioni, whose cinema successes include such films as Blow Up and L'Avventura will head a five-man team on what he hopes will be a long tour of China.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Frank Sinatra says he has dropped a $5 million libel suit against a weekly tabloid that published stories saying Sinatra had cancer, and that he was married and an expectant father.

Sinatra said Monday he

MARLENE DIETRICH
... new role

dropped his suit after the weekly, Midnight, published a retraction, paid the entertainer "minimal damages" and contributed an undisclosed sum to the Martin Anthony Sinatra Medical Foundations in Palm Springs, named for Sinatra's father.

Sinatra's suit had been filed in U.S. district court in New York.

MONTREAL (CP) — Prices are higher for most things

these days, but not for tickets to Montreal's live theatre.

Of 13 local theatre groups surveyed, only three reported higher ticket prices this year.

You can still see a play in this city for a price as little as $2.50 at the Theatre d'Aujourd'hui to $5 on a Saturday night at the Theatre du Nouveau-Monde.

And the Theatre d'Aujourd'hui was one of the companies which raised its prices 50 cents this year.

The Montreal International Theatre changed the ratio of expensive to cheap tickets this year. There are relatively few of the $2.50 seats available and more of the $3.50 ones in the 180-seat theatre.

But as Mary Morter of the Pendulum Theatre said: "Prices have to be kept down."

And most theatre people in Montreal aren't in the business for the money.

The bulk of the companies are non-profit corporations, relying heavily for survival on grants from the federal, provincial or municipal governments. Ticket sales represent a major but not a total source of income.

While actors salaries vary widely according to experience, qualifications and roles, they range from an average of $12 a night at the tiny 99-seat Theatre d'Aujourd'hui to about $40 a show at the Nouvelle Compagnie Theatre.

The pay for artistic directors appears to fit the same general pattern.

Burtons Set A Family Record

BUDAPEST (AP) — Actor Richard Burton ended three months of film work here in the title role of Edward Dmytryk's Bluebeard, the legendary wife-killer, and flew to Rome Thursday to join his wife, Elizabeth Taylor.

"This was a family record—to have been away from each other for a full week, as the earlier longest was a bare two days," said the 47-year-old Burton.

Liz, 40, who did not play in the film which is due to be released next August, took it easy while spending time here with Burton. She left for Rome a week ago.

MONTREAL ON STAGE

Theatre Alive, Growing Fast

MONTREAL (CP) — Theatre in Canada's largest city is alive and growing. More professional companies are operating, audiences are increasing and there is a steady pool of acting talent.

This season at least 13 local professional groups have produced plays in French, English and German. One performs in Yiddish.

Among the productions have been several new Canadian plays.

Theatres range from the 99-seat Theatre d'Aujourd'hui to the 817-seat Theatre Port Royal, home of the Theatre du Nouveau Monde.

One group performs in what used to be the Montreal and Canadian stock exchanges building in Old Montreal and another has remodelled an early 19th-century British Army powder magazine.

Another, funded heavily by the provincial government, performs almost exclusively to student audiences.

While most local theatre administrators would like to see more money coming in from the government, they seem to be almost cocky about the results achieved with available resources.

Most agree that audiences are growing.

"It's certainly not because there's more money around," Jeanine Beaubien, director of the Montreal International Theatre, said in an interview. The MIT performs in English, French and German at La Poudriere, the remodelled powder magazine, and she thinks the setting of the theatre on St. Helen's Island may have something to do with increasing audiences in the last two years.

"In spring, summer and autumn it's really quite nice," she said. "We get a lot of business from conventions in the city. And a lot of Montrealers who used to look to New York for theatre are being drawn here. There's good talent here."

Pierre Begin of the Theatre d'Aujourd'hui said:

"People come to see us because our plays are created solely for this theatre. They've never been seen elsewhere. There is a growing public acceptance of what we have to offer. Even English-Canadians came to see Papi-neau Rides Again. It's a political satire and they seem to enjoy it."

One surprising political satire which had a measure of success was Der Liebe Gott Wird Sich Kuemmern, a play about Quebec written in German by Montrealer Erwin Pott and performed in German by the MIT's German cast.

Marion Andre, artistic director at the Saidye Bronfman Centre attached to the YM-YWCA, said attendance at his theatre is up 15 per cent this season over the last one.

PUBLICITY PAYS

NEW YORK (AP) — Nina Van Pallandt, the Danish singer who testified in the Clifford Irving-Howard Hughes affair, has been signed to co-star in a film with Elliott Gould, it was announced Monday. Miss Van Pallandt will play in The Long Goodbye, a United Artists movie to be filmed in Los Angeles starting in June. The film is based on a Raymond Chandler detective story and will be directed by Robert Altman.

Mary, Queen Of Scots Unlikely As Heroine In New Musical

TORONTO (CP) — Mary, Queen of Scots, stands prominent among the tragic figures of history and, on first reflection, seems an unlikely heroine for a musical.

However, as brought to life in the Charlottetown Festival Company musical production of Mary, the ill-fated 16th-century queen loses none of her tragic stature.

Mary, first performed by the company at the annual summer festival in Charlottetown last year, has begun a two-week engagement at the O'Keefe Centre here before a near-capacity audience that gave hearty applause for every scene, although only a lukewarm ovation at the evening's end.

There was the inevitable comparison with the movie, Mary, Queen of Scots, that makes more to the point of altering history—of the conflict between two female rivals for the throne of England, Mary and Elizabeth.

Christopher Gore, a 29-year-old American who wrote the book and lyrics for Mary, says he took the approach "that this is her story, not Elizabeth's."

"We use the love story between Lord Bothwell and Mary as the central unifying theme rather than the conflicting personalities of Mary and Elizabeth."

KEPT TO HISTORY

In this, he has kept closer to the recorded events of history, following Mary's life from the time she left her childhood home in France to return to Scotland as queen, through the intrigues and love affairs that precipitated her eventual fate, death by execution on the orders of Elizabeth.

Marilyn Lightstone, who created the role, endowed the character of Mary with both the dignity and joie de vivre that exemplified the power and charm history attributes to the queen, who was able to retain her

Disney World To Expand

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Walt Disney World officials have announced a multi-million dollar expansion program for the $400 million amusement centre.

Dick Nunis, executive vice-president of the tourist attraction, made the announcement recently at a luncheon of the Florida Press Association.

Nunis said a space exploration display and a new western frontier pavilion were part of the project.

Officials said the centre is expected to spend about $50 million in development costs during a period from October, 1972, to October, 1973.

The Bells Have Come A Long Way With An Easy Listening Style

MONTREAL (CP) — The Bells have come a long way from the easy listening style of a background noise group that played the posh supper-club circuit.

And still a longer way from the days when Jacki Ralph and Cliff Edwards used to sing at ski chalets in the Laurentians north of Montreal.

Until a couple of years ago they had teamed up with three other singers and were known as the Five Bells, a group of youngsters barely out of high school. Then they disbanded.

"Five years of nothing but clubs, clubs, clubs," says Jacki, blonde female lead in the new six-voice group.

"It was just the same old thing—soft nightclub music—day in and day out. We just got sick of it. The group went as far as it could playing that kind of stuff."

As the Five Bells, the group performed in nightclubs and resorts in New York, Miami, the Bahamas, Bermuda and Puerto Rico. However, its one album, Dimensions, with Polydor Records in 1969, never caught on—although one of the songs, Moody Manitoba Morning by Winnipeg's Rick Neufeld, held plenty of promise.

Today the new Bells—two members have been replaced by three new voices—are considered among Canada's top singing groups and have good record awards and demands for engagements from all over the world to prove it.

When the group broke up Cliff Edwards went into the production and managing angle of the business with two groups, Tapestry and Rhyme and Reason.

He learned a lot, got a new slant on what he wanted to do and then started the group going again.

Besides Jacki and Cliff, the group includes Denny Will, Doug Gravelle, Mike Wayne and Charlie Clarke.

"We're still pretty much middle-of-the-road as far as our music is concerned," says Charlie, who plays lead guitar.

"But there is a big difference musically. The Five Bells used to be cabaret singers but now we're more rock oriented. And it shows. We can appeal to a 13-year-old, and sitting right next to her is a 45-year-old, and they're both really liking it."

"We're doing the colleges like we always wanted to," Doug adds, "but not the big ones."

"They go for the really big names on the hard rock scene. The more conservative colleges go for us."

Along with the college circuit, The Bells also tour fairs in north-central United States and Canada. They have just completed a cross-country tour which began in the Maritimes and touched all the major cities in the West as well.

Home Grown Best For P.Q.

MONTREAL (CP) — Home-grown theatre is an established fact in the province of Quebec.

High schools teach Canadian plays. Courses in Canadian drama are offered in Quebec universities. And one company, established and funded by the provincial government to perform to student audiences, includes Canadian plays in its repertoire.

Francoise Graton, a director with the Nouvelle Compagnie Theatre, the group which performs to student audiences, said in an interview: "We perform only recognized classics."

As such the company performed Quebec Guy Dufresne's Le cri de l'engoulevent, described by one critic as "sort of poetic; it takes place by the sea, very French-Canadian."

"Canadian theatre is becoming more and more popular as people begin to recognize themselves in it," Miss Graton said.

The factor of recognition seems to be an important condition contributing to an established local theatre.

Playwright Roch Carrier, secretary-general of the Theatre du Nouveau Monde, says that when the company first performed 20 years ago, a handout was distributed to the audience saying that one of the group's aims would be the establishment of a place for Quebec literature and the discovery of Quebec playwrights.

Chaplin's Life Threatened

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Several persons threatened to kill film comedian Charles Chaplin during his four-day visit here last month, says a former city police lieutenant hired to guard Chaplin in Los Angeles.

William Jordan, now head of Computer Investigations Associates, said Sunday there were 12 to 15 anonymous threats on Chaplin's life. Jordan said the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences hired him to guard Chaplin. Jordan said there were no attempts to harm the actor.

Chaplin came here to receive a special Oscar from the Academy for his contributions to the film industry. The visit rekindled resentments over his political views and personal life that led to a self-imposed exile to Switzerland 20 years ago.

Godfather Role May Change Her Image

ROME (AP) — She walks about the streets of Rome evoking whistles for her youthful beauty. Soon the whistles may become a clamor and she will be recognized everywhere.

So far Simonetta Stefanelli has only heard rumblings of the impact that The Godfather has had on the American movie public. Only when the movie opens in Italy will she realize how much it is likely to change her life.

Her mature beauty makes her look several years older than her age of 17. That's part of the reason she was so effective as Al Pacino's Sicilian bride in The Godfather. Another factor was her innocent sexuality.

Miss Stefanelli plays the same role in an interview. She appears in miniskirt and top of multicolored yarn, like a Roman girl playing hooky from school. But her answers, which had to be translated show her to be worldly wise.

"I heard about the success of the book, The Godfather," she remarked, "but I hadn't read the book."

"It was very popular in Italy. As soon as I was interviewed for the role, I went out and read the book."

Her interviewer was Francis Ford Coppola, the Italian-American who had been chosen to direct The Godfather. He had been shown a photograph of Miss Stefanelli by a talent agency.

Simonetta Stefanelli was born in Rome, first of five children of a businessman in the chemical industry. She was only a so-so scholar and dropped out of school at 14. Meanwhile she had been getting small roles in movies.

Except for a visit to Switzerland, Simonetta has never been out of Italy. Nor had she been to Sicily before The Godfather. She said she experienced no problems with director Coppola. She went along with everything, including a seminude scene.

"I had done one in another film," she said. "I don't really like to do it, but if the role calls for it, I will not refuse."

Mike Abhors Costly Gems

LONDON (AP) — Michael Wilding, 19-year-old son of film star Elizabeth Taylor, has retreated to the top of a Welsh mountain.

"I just don't dig all those diamonds and things," said Wilding, referring to his stepfather Richard Burton's habit of lavishing expensive baubles on Miss Taylor.

Wilding told The Daily Mirror that he has taken his wife Beth and their baby daughter Leyla to live frugally with a commune family in a four-bedroom 19th-century farm house high in the desolate Cambrian Mountains of Wales.

They gave up a $78,000 home in London which Miss Taylor gave them as a wedding present.

Wilding is the son of Miss Taylor's marriage to British actor Michael Wilding.

Applause In A Movie Theatre Heard For Nfld.'s Rowdyman

GUELPH, Ont. (CP) — Applause is rare in a movie theatre, but it was given in generous quantity Wednesday night following a showing of The Rowdyman, the first feature film ever made in Newfoundland.

About 500 persons attended the special preview showing of the film, which has its official world premiere in St. John's, Nfld., May 18.

The movie was shown here as part of the annual Guelph Spring Festival. Earlier in the day, more than 700 persons, about one-third of them school children let out especially for the occasion, saw Claude Jutra's Mon Uncle Antoine, the Quebec film that was named best Canadian film of 1971.

Special guests at the showing of The Rowdyman included Lawrence Dane, the film's producer, Peter Carter, its director, and two female members of the cast, Linda Goranson and Sabina Maydelle.

Canadian Gordon Pinsent, a native of Newfoundland, who both wrote and starred in The Rowdyman, was scheduled to be present but missed his plane in New York.

HAD FEDERAL AID

The movie, shot in Corner Brook and St. John's, was produced for under $350,000 with the Canadian Film Development Corp. putting up half and the rest of the money coming from Crawley Films of Ottawa and Angiocourt Productions of Toronto.

American actors Will Geer and Frank Converse have supporting roles in the film.

Bob And David In New Series

LONDON (Reuter) — American actor Robert Wagner and Briton David McCallum have signed for a 15-part television series based on Colditz Castle, the famous German Second World War prisoner-of-war camp.

The series will be called Colditz and will be co-produced by the British Broadcasting Corp. and Universal TV in the United States.

The stories are based on two books by British Army Major Pat Reid, who is acting as consultant for the series, now being filmed at Colditz Castle in East Germany.

No, No Says Betty To Musical Role

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Betty Grable will not be coming to Australia to star in the musical No, No Nanette, the managing director of Williamson-Edgley Theatres, Michael Edgley, said today.

He said Miss Grable was in "life and death illness" in a Los Angeles hospital and her place in the show beginning June 24 will be taken by American actress Cyd Charisse.

PAPARAZZI ROW STIRS ARIS AND LIZ

Aristotle Onassis and actress Elizabeth Taylor are shown as they leave a fashionable Roman man restaurant at dawn after a row with several paparazzi — Rome's aggressive freelance photographers. Onassis was reported to have sprayed the photographers with champagne while Miss Taylor crouched under a table.

Rock Concerts Help McGovern

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Rock concerts are providing Sen. George McGovern's presidential campaign with the sound of clinking cash—with the latest netting $90,000.

Nearly 14,000 people, mostly youths, paid prices ranging from $4.50 to $25 recently to see recording and screen stars such as Judy Collins, Mama Cass Elliot, Warren Beatty and Jack Nicholson. McGovern did not attend.

The gate pushed the total from McGovern rock concerts to a reported $460,000.

Beatty told the crowd the concerts have become a "major source of income" during the campaign.

The first, held last month in Los Angeles, brought in $300,000, and a McGovern rock concert in Cleveland last week netted $70,000.

Brando, Ex-Wife Reach Accord

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (Reuter) — Actor Marlon Brando and his former wife, Anna Kashfi, 37, reached a peaceable agreement recently in their bitter court battle over custody of their son, Christian Devi, 13.

The couple worked out an out-of-court settlement under which the 48-year-old actor will get sole custody of the boy, and the former actress will have visitation rights.

The couple were divorced in 1959.

Canadian Musicians Receive Promotion

TORONTO (CP) — The federal government and Canadian record manufacturers have become partners in a scheme to promote Canadian musicians and their music.

An Ottawa news release said Wednesday Secretary of State Gerard Pelletier had announced the government would contribute $30,000 to the project. The Canadian Recording Manufacturers' Association has put up $50,000.

Total cost of the project, called Maple Leaf Junket, which will bring as many as 100 writers, editors, broadcasters, producers and film makers from 14 European countries to Canada, is estimated at close to $100,000.

At a news conference here Wednesday to announce details of the project, Ritchie Yorke, pop columnist who originated the idea and is co-ordinator of the event, said the difference will probably be made up through sale of tickets to concerts and possible release to theatres of a film of the concerts.

Five concerts are scheduled between June 2 and 8 for the benefit of the visiting Europeans but will be open to the public.

WILL BE IN FRENCH

The first two in Montreal will be French-language concerts, details of which are to be announced at a news conference there Monday.

An English-language concert will be presented in the same city June 5. Performed at the Place des Arts, it will feature The Poppy Family, Andre Gagnon, Moe Koffman, Frank Mills, Anne Murray, The Stampeters and Tapestry.

On June 6, the first of two concerts at Massey Hall in Toronto will feature Gary Buck, Bruce Cockburn, The Perth County Conspiracy, Fergus, Christopher Kearney, Murray McLauchlan, and the Mercey Brothers.

Taking part in the June 7 concert will be April Wine, Chilli-wack, Crowbar, Edward Bear, Fludd, Lighthouse and Mash-makhan.

The performers were selected by an independent talent committee made up of retailers, broadcasters and journalists.

Some record company executives said Wednesday that some of the performers they record will be going to Europe after Junket, as part of follow-up promotion.

Mr. Yorke said that of 100 Europeans invited 70 "have positively said they are coming."

Trade observers from the United States have also been invited.

In addition to the concerts, the guests, while in Montreal, will attend a screening of Canadian films. A final dinner in Toronto at the Royal York Hotel will be attended by Pierre Ju-neau, chairman of the Canadian Radio-Television Commission and other government officials.

CREATED LONE RANGER

GROSSE POINTE, Mich.

(AP) — George W. Trendle, 87, creator of the Lone Ranger on radio nearly 40 years ago, died Wednesday in a Detroit hospital. He also created Sgt. Preston of the Yukon and the Green Hornet during the early days of radio.

ADVANCED DRIVER

LEEDS (CP) — Gladys Creswell drove her husband Bill round the bend with her back-seat driving. Determined to stop the arguments, Bill took the advanced motorist's test and passed first time—at the age of 73. "He put up a great performance," Bill's instructor said. "He may be the oldest driver to pass this rigorous test." Pensioner Gladys, 70, added: "I certainly won't nag him any more."

BRIAN'S SONG: A WRONG CHORD

NEW YORK (AP) — The Associated Press erroneously reported Saturday night that Joseph Biroc had received an Emmy Award for producing Brian's Song, an ABC Movie of the Week, and that Brian's Song had been voted television's best feature-length program for 1971-72.

Biroc received his award for cinematography on Brian's Song. The award for the best feature-length program will be presented this Saturday along with other Emmy Awards for 1971-72.

India's Stars In Tax Focus

BOMBAY (Reuter) — Squads of income-tax investigators have carried out raids for the third consecutive day on the luxury homes here of India's top film stars, producers and distributors.

Revenue sources said great sums of money, jewelry and account books were seized. A squad of about 300 income-tax men from New Delhi has been drafted for the operation which is being directed by Finance Minister R. K. R. Ganes.

Dodging Indian income tax, probably the highest in the world, is almost a national pastime.

A statement in the Indian Parliament recently showed that many of India's top film stars owe tens of thousands of dollars in tax arrears.

He Lives In Artists' Colony But Returns To Canada Often

VENCE, France (CP) — The whole process takes a few years. A few years of working every day, getting up early, working all day alone until late. A few years of a man's life.

For James Ritchie another cycle is just ending.

Born in Montreal in 1929 he moved to the south coast of France in the late 1950s. "I came here for any number of reasons, not the least of which is that it is one of the healthiest places on earth. The water is fresh. The air is clean. And all of that is vitally important to my work."

Ritchie lives and works in this town, the one the guidebooks call "an artists' colony." It's stuck back into the mountains behind Nice. Not far away live Picasso, Chagall, Max Ernst, Jean Dubuffet.

There is a small park in the centre of town, lined with outdoor cafes and just off to the side, back in a corner, is an old building with a watchtower. That's Ritchie's studio.

"Living and working here has been a great influence on my sculpture. I started as a kid, maybe 10 or 11, fooling around with ceramics. I guess I became good at it early because I turned professional when I was 16. That's 26 years now and half of that time has been spent here on the Riviera.

"The quality of life and the quality of work are interchangeable. My work, my sculptures, are a way of life. Everything I produce becomes an extension of me. They're very much like children. They become what I am."

But Canada still remains home.

"I'm a Canadian. I was born there and I will always think of Canada as my home. Unlike many Canadian artists I don't go around the world with my work. I come back to Canada just about every two years to show there. That's where my interests are, in showing almost exclusively in Canada.

"What I have to go through to put a show together is without a doubt nerve-racking. After all, I have to ship 15 to 20 pieces of sculpture from here to Nice. Then to Paris. Then to Montreal. Then to wherever the show is going to be. It's a tremendous expense to me in both personal funds and time.

"This year will be my sixth trip back and I don't really look forward to what I've got to go through to get back. But once I'm through with all that, then I'm doing what is very important to me, I'm showing my work in my country."

EYE FOR DETAIL

LONDON (CP) — Madame Tussaud's, the famous waxworks, slipped up over an effigy of the late president Nasser of Egypt. Khalid Nasser, 26-year-old son of the Arab leader, noticed during a visit to the exhibition that the model of his father was wearing a spotted tie. Khalid pointed out that the president always wore a striped hand-made tie. He plans to present the genuine article to the waxworks on his next visit.

Fire-Eater Ate Her Words Too

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — Princess Eutacia, the fire-eater with the Bartok European Circus, received first- and second-degree burns when a fire broke out in her house trailer while she was practising her act, fire officials reported.

Her husband, Count Desmond, the circus sword swallower, lost his cutlery in the blaze but in true show business fashion carried on and "ate" a bent coat hanger at Tuesday night's performance.

LONDON (Reuter) — Rowdy sports fans often make the worst lovers, says a psychological study published today in New Scientist magazine.

"A tiger on the football stands, a mouse on the mattress," it says. "Thunder in the stands forebodes only peace between the sheets. Watching football is a substitute for virility."

MOUNT CLEMENS, Mich. (AP) — Three Arab pickle and pepper packers have gone kosher.

It all started when the Saffie Brothers Farm Pickle Co. near Mount Clemens decided to turn out a line of kosher pickles and peppers named King David.

The three brothers—George, Charles and Louis—needed a rabbi to make it kosher. Rabbi Jack Goldman said he would be happy to oblige, and Wednesday the three Arab brothers and the rabbi celebrated the birthday of a new pickle.

"We've heard so much about ping-pong diplomacy," Rabbi Goldman said, "we thought we'd try a little pickle diplomacy."

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Two college co-eds have put the finger on a man accused of stamping on their toes.

George Mitchell was sentenced to three consecutive terms of 11 months 29 days after being charged with assault and battery for stamping on the feet of Liz Alsobrook, 18, of Peabody College, and Alexis Fitzbaugh, 19, of Vanderbilt University. Authorities said Mitchell has an 11-year record of police complaints that he stamped on women's toes—or for variety he dropped books or bags of cement on them.

Police said he apparently pulled the stunts to facilitate purse snatching.

Liberals 'Kill The Messenger'

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberal governments, like ancient monarchs, kill the messenger rather than accept the bad news, says Max Salsman, New Democrat financial critic.

He told the Commons Thursday this is the attitude that leads Liberals to offer all kinds of excuses but never to face up to such facts as unemployment that has run about six per cent of the labor force for a year.

In the first day of full debate on Monday's budget, Mr. Salsman said a recent assessment by Statistics Canada showed there had been no appreciable change in redistribution of income between the various levels of Canadian society between 1967 and 1972. This was despite all the vaunted programs on the subject produced by Conservative and Liberal governments in those 10 years.

He said Robert Kaplan (L-Toronto Don Valley), chairman of the finance committee, raised the issue when Statistics Canada officials were before the committee and was dissatisfied with the information.

Mr. Salsman quoted Mr. Kaplan as saying that if true, it constituted "one of the most serious allegations" against government he had ever seen.

Reading from the committee record, he quoted Mr. Kaplan as saying: "I think it is very important for the credibility of Parliament . . . that there has been movement."

Mr. Salsman said this was one of "the most pathetic statements made by a young man in search of justification for his policies."

When he couldn't stand the hard news, he blamed those gathering the statistics.

His speech set the tone for a day of criticism of government tax and spending programs for the year.

Marcel Lambert, Conservative financial critic, called the budget a hit-and-miss effort that took money away with one hand, gave it back with another, but still treated the country as a "whole forest of money trees" that could be harvested without limit.

Main thrust of the budget was a reduction in corporation income taxes in an effort to stimulate job-creating industrial expansion and increases in pensions for the elderly and disabled war veterans and their dependants.

The budget debate, which can go a maximum six days, provides a chance for motions of non-confidence in government policies.

MOVED MOTION

Conservatives and New Democrats quickly took the opportunity. Mr. Lambert moved one saying the government had failed to bring in adequate measures to relieve unemployment, provide incentives for Canadians to invest in their own economy and to provide personal income tax relief as an economic stimulant.

Mr. Salsman added a sub-amendment saying the government should have reduced taxes for middle- and lower-income groups to replace the cuts given corporations.

Both criticized the government for not adopting a real industrial strategy.

Both also noted that the new tax bill, brought in late last year and applying for the first time this year, is going to produce about $1.2 billion more from direct taxation of individuals.

With direct corporate taxes being reduced by $60 million at the same time, Mr. Salsman said, and with the bulk of Canada's industrial sector owned by foreigners, this amounted to the wage and salary earners of the country being forced to pay a fantastic subsidy that would benefit foreigners.

This amounted to a straight bribe in an attempt to keep

Rutland School Presents Diversified Programs

RUTLAND (Staff) — Sailing, tennis and golf on the school curriculum? Well, they are at Rutland Junior Secondary School.

Every Friday afternoon for six weeks, students and teachers left the school for such places as Big White Mountain, a riding stable, the Kelowna waterfront, a golf course, sporting goods store and Oliver Jackson's Indian museum. They spent the afternoon not fooling around, but learning things that will be useful to them.

Usually such programs are held after school, preventing students who live a long way from school, or work after school, from taking them. With the increasing amount of leisure time, more and more people involved with education are recommending they be taught in school time. They do not count for grades.

"It was really successful," commented vice-principal Kelly

Slater, who organized the program. "The students learned things that will help them use leisure time profitably."

School board officials co-operated in providing buses. Staff cars were also used.

The students decided what programs should be included in the six-week period. From 38 suggestions, they picked 22. Drama, sailing, cooking, outdoor club, library, tennis and 10-speed bike repair lasted six weeks, and people taking them could not take other programs. Skiing lasted five weeks, so another program could be taken for the remaining week.

Golf, surveying, motor maintenance, photography, horse riding and care, and creative writing were offered for three weeks, leaving half the time for other programs. Canoeing, crocheting, knitting, macrame (a form of weaving) and tie-dyeing (a form of art) were two-week courses, meaning four weeks were available for other courses. Personal grooming, child care and fly fishing were on for a week, leaving five weeks for other programs.

Sailing, golf, horse riding and care, and canoeing were the most popular. In fact, these were filled when the first registration forms were sent in. Driving, gun safety, kite flying, drugs and electronics were dropped from the final list because not enough students registered.

Students and teachers are being asked to evaluate the scheme. Mr. Slater expressed hopes it will be offered next year.

"I would certainly recommend broadening this area of study," one teacher says.

Peachland Council Hears Of Island Project Plans

PEACHLAND (Special) — E. A. Haymoun developer of Rattlesnake (Sunshine) Island directly across from Peachland assured the Peachland Municipal Council at the Wednesday night regular meeting that his development will not cause the municipality problems.

He told council he had obtained permission to use the Totem Inn parking facilities behind the hotel for parking and their docking facilities for loading his passengers for the Island. He went on to assure council he was pleased to be asked to outline his plans to them, stating if any problems arise he hasn't foreseen to date, he will co-operate fully with council. He stated he only wants to benefit this community by putting Peachland on the map. Aldermen asked many questions about signs, advertising, boats to be used. These were all answered by the developer and Mr. Haymoun was thanked by the mayor for attending as requested.

Steven Zuk, chamber representative sitting in on this meeting thanked council for their prompt action concerning repairs to lights on Princeton Avenue. As to street and speed signs not yet in place he was assured they were now available and will be erected as soon as municipal crews' duties permit.

Mr. and Mrs. Ken Chippendale, owners of the Desert Pines subdivision attended council. Mr. Chippendale reported a booster pump has now been installed and asked inspection by the municipal domestic water crew. Ald. George Meldrum will arrange this. Mrs. Chippendale brought to council's attention the problem of young motor cyclists roaring around the Big Waters and Trempanier Creek area of town. She asked if there wasn't some municipal land available that could be set aside for these cycle enthusiasts so they could run their bikes without being a nuisance to anyone.

She spoke of the Riding Club grounds set aside for riders in the past few years. Mayor Thwaite, in answering this suggestion, stated he felt it was a good idea and suggested the adjoining lot to the Riding Club grounds in the Mountain View Park could possibly be put to this use if parents and students are interested. He felt all that was needed was this interest shown and a firm proposal as to responsibility.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Gove and Mrs. Garry Topham, residents of Beach Avenue S, attended council to complain of the grasshopper infestation in this area. Council agreed to contact the Summerland Experimental Station to ask for advice for this problem.

A delegation of residents of 11th Street attended to get an answer to their former request for paving. They were informed a special meeting had been held to discuss paving and that the meeting agreed paving for such a short portion would be too costly, but will start soon with dust control, oiling and spray in the near future.

Chamber representative Mr. Zuk asked if council had any plans at all for paving municipal roads. He stated 80 per cent of the roads need improvement. When, next year, two years from now? He felt people had the right to know. Mayor Thwaite stated we are planning a dust control and oiling program where it is needed, but stated with this year's snow removal costs, which were four times the normal, paving is not to be considered.

Carl Guth who attended council for a decision on rocks dumped on his property bordering Sanderson Road was assured an inspection had been made and these will be removed when the road is widened. He was told this was a ARDA problem besides a municipal one and that co-operation has been obtained. He was asked to be patient.
